JAPAN AND CHINA ACCEPT LEAGUE ARMISTICE PLAN

Man Is Wonderful.
A Little Science.
Those Seven Lambs.
A Jobless Candidate.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MADAME DE SEVIGNE said: "The more I see of men, the more I think of dogs."

She would not say that, if alive now. The more you see of men, at their best, the more you admire their intelligence.

Railroad wrecks are caused by defective rails. Transverse fissures, deep within the steel, could be known only AFTER the rail gave way and a train was derailed.

BUT SCIENCE can see things invisible to man. The New York Central Railroad has perfected a device that detects flaws in the steel, marks on paper each rail defect and splashes paint automatically on the weak spot, that track walkers may see it. This device will be run over the New York Central tracks, at least once a year.

THE MASSACHUSETTS Institute of Technology will construct an X-ray tube of fifteen million volts capacity, to fire protons at a target, the object being to disintegrate the atom.

A proton, which is at the center of every atom, like our sun, at the center of our solar system, is two thousand times heavier than the electrons that revolve around it.

To bombard electrons with protons would be like bombarding this little earth with projectiles the size of the planet Jupiter. Try to imagine that.

SCIENTISTS HOPE that eventually the alchemists' dream of changing base metals into gold may come true.

We know that elements do change in course of time.

Prof. J. Arthur Thomson, of the University of Aberdeen, tells you:

"Uranium may change into radium, that radium may produce helium and lead is the final stable result, when the changes of uranium are complete."

HOW INSPIRING for a plumber to reflect that the lead pipe joint that he is now "wiping" was once uranium, then radium, then helium, the light gas that raises our dirigibles, and is now heavy lead.

Some scientists say that breaking up the atom may prove to be very dangerous business. We may know about that when the fifteen million-volt tube starts working.

PERHAPS YOU read here the story of seven lambs published by Senator Capper on the front page of his Capper's Weekly, read by half a million farmers every week.

It told of seven lambs sold by a farmer to a wholesale butcher for three dollars. The story said the farmer got only three dollars for his seven lambs, and after he paid the cost of selling, plus government inspection, he had only seventy-five cents left, while the consumers that ate the lambs paid eighty-three dollars and seventy cents for the meat.

NOW, THE "Institute of American Meat Packers" would like you to hear its side of the story told as follows:

"The lambs were sold in Denver, not Chicago. They were not lambs at all, but old ewes, worth fifty cents a hundred pounds, and sold at that price."

The statement that the consumers paid eighty-three dollars and seventy cents for seventy-five cents worth of lamb on the farm is untrue, according to the Packers' Institute. Meat packers make a very small profit on their turnover, not more than four per cent.

It is also known that DISTRIBUTION, which means retail selling, is very expensive. The rest of the argument can be left to the Meat Packers' Institute, Senator Capper, of Kansas, and Mr. Esteis, the farmer, who is alleged to have said that he got exactly seventy-five cents for seven lambs.

IN ADDITION, it is desirable to add that whether the lambs brought seventy-five cents on the farm and eighty-three dollars and seventy cents in the market or not, it is DESIRABLE TO EAT MEAT, AND GIVE IT TO YOUR CHILDREN.

THE JAPANESE are a good fighting race today because when the Mikado looked at the big American sailors that landed from Commodore Perry's ships, and compared them with his undersized Japanese, fed on vegetables because the religion of Buddha forbade meat-eating, he immediately ordered his men to eat meat and grow bigger, Buddha or no Buddha.

Also, when Japan fought against Russia, the Japanese found it necessary to stop the custom of feeding soldiers chiefly on rice, and substituted plenty of meat, a condensed food, for the big bowl of rice that weighted down their stomachs.

If you want your children to be strong, and if you want to keep surplus strength in your brain, instead of surplus weight in your body, don't be a vegetarian.

THE REV. JAMES R. COX, Pittsburgh priest who led a "jobless parade" of fifteen thousand to Washington, has formed a jobless party, and says he will run for President, if the nation does not provide direct aid to the jobless.

The government cannot do

PROHIBITION BACKED BY HOOVER

President's Plea to Congress To Plug Legal Loopholes Renews Dry Capital Drive

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—A plugging of loopholes in the federal bankruptcy and criminal laws—coupled with a strengthened enforcement of prohibition in the capital—was advocated to Congress today by President Hoover in a special message.

Speaking of the dry law for the first time since the submission of the Wickersham report, the President urged speedy action on his previous recommendation that the District of Columbia be made a model enforcement city for the Nation.

Also, in ending his communication, the President said that as important as his recommendations were—"we must all keep before us that effective administration of the law in a republic requires not only adequate and proper machinery, honest and capable officials, but above all a citizenry imbued with a spirit of respect for law."

ASKS MORE JUDGES

His recommendations included:

Creation of additional judgeships to relieve congestion.

Authorization for the Supreme Court to prescribe rules to expedite action on appeals.

Provision that if 12 eligible grand jurors vote for indictment, it cannot be invalidated by the presence of ineligibles on the grand jury.

Limitation of time for making motions to quash indictments because of disqualification of grand jurors.

URGES POLICE AS DRYS

The President strongly criticized flaws in the present bankruptcy laws. He pointed out that losses to creditors soared in 1931 to a total of $911,000,000.

Under his proposals for stricter prohibition enforcement in this city, which were published last year and now are embodied in pending legislation, the police would be clothed with the authority of federal prohibition agents. He devoted but a single paragraph to the subject today.

Highways Bureau Restores 100 Jobs

One hundred "furloughed" laborers in the Bureau of Highways and Sewers were ordered reinstated today by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang. The men will start work tomorrow improving sewers and streets. For the present they will be given part-time work.

Chief Clerk Leo Kirch expects to reinstate several score in the Bureau of Parks in a few days to clean up the parks preparatory for spring.

ACTION ON RATE CUTS DELAYED

City Solicitor Charles R. Waldschmidt today asked Council to defer action upon the 10-cent-a-month reduction in electric rates and less than 5 cents on bus fares proposed by Frank R. Phillips, head of the Philadelphia Company, to give him time to compare Pittsburgh rates with other cities.

Waldschmidt also indicated he desired to study reports of earnings and investments of the Duquesne Light Company and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company for the past several years before advising Council as to the acceptance or rejection of the offer.

The request was granted at a secret session of Council lasting more than two and one-half hours. The next meeting was left to the discretion of Chairman W. Y. English.

Council will also receive a new protest against accepting the proposal from the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association and an invitation from President A. B. Davidson to join with other municipalities throughout the state in seeking lower utility rates.

Girl, 'Jazz' Slayer Of Mother, Freed

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Feb. 29. — (AP.) — Prison gates open today for Dorothy Ellingson, 23, who shot her mother to death at San Francisco seven years ago in an argument over the propriety of her associations with men and then went to a dance.

Described by attorneys as "a product of the jazz age," she has served six and a half years of a 10-year manslaughter sentence. Good conduct credits cut the term short. Prison officials said they expected her father to meet her. Formerly Joseph Ellingson, he changed his name after the slaying.

Pershing to Leave Reed Hospital Soon

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Gen. John J. Pershing is expected by his physician, Maj. O. H. Quade, of the Medical Corps, to leave Walter Reed General Hospital in a few days. He entered the hospital Friday to recuperate from a cold and slight laryngitis attack.

His physician said the General was "in fine shape" and that "there is absolutely nothing to be alarmed about" in his condition.

Woman Delegate At Geneva Recovers

GENEVA, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Dr. Mary Woolley, member of the United States delegation at the world disarmament conference, was much improved today from a throat indisposition with which she has been troubled for several days. She was permitted to leave her room today.

Boy Violinist Fined For Auto Violation

A Finleyville traffic violation and the fine that followed was one of the incidents in the Pittsburgh visit of Yehudi Menuhin, the boy wonder of the violin, it was revealed yesterday as he entrained for St. Louis.

Driving an automobile loaned him by Mrs. Enoch Rauh, the welfare director, the youth said he was stopped by an officer after he had passed through a "stop" sign in Finleyville. Mrs. Rauh today mailed a check for $8.50 covering the $5 fine and costs to the Finleyville authorities.

Deadly Germs in Sheep Stolen From Hospital

CHARLEROI, Pa., Feb. 29.—The shadow of death spurred police and attaches of the Charleroi-Monesssen Hospital today in search for a year-old sheep stolen early this morning from the hospital's experimental laboratory.

The sheep was inoculated last week with germs for study of a blood infection along with several rabbits and guineas pigs. They were kept in the basement of a building adjoining the hospital.

Early today thieves broke into the building and stole the sheep and it is believed one of the rabbits was also stolen.

Hospital authorities today would not reveal the nature of the infection, although it was said to be dangerous and contagious. They fear the sheep may be butchered by some needy family.

Proposals to Terminate Shanghai Fighting Sent Tokio for Ratification

JAP TROOPS REPULSED IN DRIVE

By MORRIS J. HARRIS

SHANGHAI, (Tuesday) March 1.—(AP.)—In one last drive before Japan's reinforcements could go into action, the Chinese sent a wave of infantry across Chapei at 2 o'clock this morning, caught the Japanese napping and pushed them back before a counter-attack could be organized.

When the Japanese got their breath, however, they closed their ranks, turned about and, under an artillery barrage, quickly recovered most of the groud they had lost.

But the Chinese clung to the Paitse bridge, north of Chapei, having taken it for the fourth time since the fighting began.

There they stood, pumping machine gun bullets into the advancing enemy, apparently ready for an all-day fight.

Yesterday the Japanese held the bridge and there was considerable fighting at close range with heavy losses on both sides.

BATTLE SHIFTS

The battle had shifted back to Chapei from Kiangwan, that stubbornly defended little village half way between Shanghai and Woosung, which the Japanese captured on Sunday, ending a long and bitter campaign.

During the fighting the American Southern Baptist Mission was damaged again when a shell tore through the wall of one of the school buildings.

While the battle was in progress, Japanese Consul General Kuramatsu Murai served notice on Mayor Wu Teh-Chen, of Shanghai, that unless the Chinese cease bringing in reinforcements the Japanese operations would be extended over a 50-mile area around the city "on a scale not even approached by the hostilities thus far."

The Japanese Consul General said in his letter to the Mayor that the Japanese would be forced in "self-defense" to destroy the Shanghai-Nanking Railway as far west as Soochow, 50 miles away, and the Shanghai-Hangchow Railway, as far as Kashing, 50 miles to the southwest.

Such a scale of hostilities would threaten one of the most thickly

1931 Drivers' Cards Void After Midnight

State police have announced that drivers operating an automobile after that time will be subject to a fine of $10 and costs. Last minute applications for change of address blanks and requests for assistance in getting licenses at the Pittsburgh Motor Club's touring bureau, indicated that many of Allegheny County's drivers will be without official cards tomorrow morning.

Kidnap Gangs Steal Thunder Of China 'War'

By FLOYD GIBBONS

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.)

SHANGHAI, Feb. 29.—(7:57 p. m.—Hello, everybody!

This here Shangha, unpleasantness is rapidly going to the dogs and to the gangsters.

And it's all on account of Mr. Kellogg and that little paper he inveigled the nice Japanese boys to sign on the dotted line.

He sold them the pact by which they agreed not to declare war and to the Japanese that was just as much of a sacrifice as if an American prohibitionist agreed tomorrow never again to declare America dry.

So for that reason Japan is not at war—the presumption being that her Army, Navy and air forces were only engaged in peacefuls maneuvers around Shanghai, but every day new kinks arise in this Kellogg tangle.

GENERAL 'KIDNAPED'

Several days ago a well-known Chinese general, and a West Point graduate at that, was found snooping around the Japanese zone in the International Settlement.

There being no war on between the Japanese and Chinese, he of course had a perfect right to look around the Japanese lines and locate a nice ammunition dump or a well-occupied barracks in which the guns of his brigade over in Chapei could drop a couple of nice Chinese shells.

CHINA TO INVADE MANCHURIA

This decision was reached at a special meeting of the government's foreign affairs commission, which also decided to resume diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia, broken off in 1929, when the Chinese and Russians were fighting in Northern Manchuria.

The new Manchurian-Mongolian state of Ankuo was organized recently under the Aegis of Japan by that group of Chinese war lords whose activities have been confined to the Manchurian territory. Henry Puy-Yi, one-time boy emperor of China, was said to have been chosen by the organizers to occupy the nominal position of head of the state.

U. S. BACKING FAR EAST TRUCE

International News Service.

GENEVA, Feb. 29.—Delegates of Japan and China this evening accepted a League of Nations Council plan for cessation of hostilities at Shanghai.

Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese delegate, announced that the plan was satisfactory and acceptable to the Chinese government at Nanking.

The plan was cabled to Tokio and Nanking for acceptance by the respective governments.

BACKED BY U. S.

The proposals adhere to by the United States government, call upon Japan to renounce any political or territorial aspirations in China, and demand that China protect foreign interests and safeguard the integrity of the International Settlement.

In announcing his approval of the plan contingent upon formal acceptance by his government, Naotake Sato assured the council that Japan has neither political nor territorial ambitions in China.

The plan calls for an armistice conference at Shanghai, to be participated in by the two disputant nations and all countries having special interests in that city.

Indicating the League Council did not feel absolutely certain that both the Tokio and Nanking governments would accept the plan, the members did not postpone the scheduled meeting of the League of Nations Assembly, as recommended by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary.

MAIN STIPULATIONS

Terminating the League council meeting, President Joseph Paul-Boncour announced that the assembly would convene at noon on March 3 to consider the entire Sino-Japanese situation.

The plan contains two main stipulations. They are:

1—Japan must renounce any intention of infringing upon the territorial and political integrity of China.

2—China must guarantee protection of foreign interests in Shanghai and insure the integrity of the International Settlement.

Paul-Boncour outlined the plan. Sato immediately declared he would accept the plan provided his government approved.

Paul-Boncour then informed the council that the United States government approved of the proposal. He said:

Virtually Whole U. S. Fleet Ordered to Pacific

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Orders have been issued by the Nevy Department which will place virtually the entire United States Navy in the Pacific Ocean.

The training squadron of the scouting force and the special service squadron have been ordered to proceed to the Pacific and participate for the first time in naval maneuvers.

The training squadron consists of the battleship Arkansas and six destroyers, while the special service squadron consists of the light cruiser Memphis and the destroyers Wickes and Philip.

It was said at the Navy Department that the movement of the two squadrons to the Pacific will place the largest number of fighting vessels in that ocean since 1919.

British Destroyer Hunting Kidnapers

HONG KONG, Feb. 29.—(AP)—Reports from Swatow today said Chinese Communists had raided the lighthouse at Breaker Point, 30 miles southwest of that town, and kidnaped the lightkeepers, including a British citizen named Edwards, his wife and their four children.

A British destroyer at Swatow was searching for the kidnapers and another British destroyer was ordered from Hong Kong.

3 U. S. Soldiers Die On Duty in Shanghai

SHANGHAI, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—The first three casualties among the American defense forces participating in the Shanghai crisis were reported today.

Sergt. Moore L. Gordon, of Sidney, Iowa, a member of the 31st United States Infantry, died of pneumonia. Reports were also made on the deaths of two private soldiers of the 31st Infantry, Pvt. James Jordan, of Chidester, Ark., and Pvt. Labert Lewis, of Pocatello, Idaho, both of whom died of smallpox.

Critics to Tell House How to 'Save' Drama

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(INS.)—Leading dramatic critics will be summoned here to tell Congress how to "save" the spoken drama. The House Patents Committee decided today after Representative Sirovich (Dem.), of New York, chairman, bitterly assailed the reviewers for "discouraging" producers and authors.

The committee's action—a drama in itself—came after William A. Brady, Arthur Hammerstein and the Shuberts failed to appear to testify on a copyright bill.

Powers Appeal Taken To High W. Va. Court

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Attorney J. Ed. Law went to Charleston today to carry the fight for the life of his client, Harry F. Powers, to the State Supreme Court. Powers, "the Bluebeard of Quiet Dell," was sentenced to be hanged March 18.

Should the court refuse to consider the case, preparations for Powers' execution will go forward. If a writ is granted, however, several months would elapse before the tribunal reaches a decision.

Skull Fractured By Plunge in Jail

David W. Kerr, 46, is in a serious condition in Mercy Hospital today suffering from a fractured skull, suffered in a leap from a tier in the county jail Saturday.

Kerr, committed to jail for 10 days at Central station on a disorderly conduct charge, eluded his guard when being taken to a cell and leaped 40 feet to the concrete floor.

nese army officers looking around their camp. They just don't like it. It sort of makes 'em feel uncomfortable in the daytime and disturbs their sleep at night.

So they grabbed Gen. Wang Keng and his suitcase full of Chinese maps, codes and plans. But they have no right to, because this is not war and you can't take prisoners of war unless you are right out and out playing war.

(Editor's Note—Gen. Wang, officer on the staff of Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai, was seized in the lobby of the Astor House after he had fled from Japanese sentries, who pursued him when he walked into the grounds of the Japanese consulate, which he mistook for the American consulate, which moved several months ago.)

CHINESE PROTEST

Gen Wang pointed that out to the Japanese, but they couldn't see it his way at all, and so they are keeping him somewhere—if they have not killed him—and the rest of the Chinese army is protesting to all of the foreign consuls in Shanghai about protection of Chinese in the International Settlement.

The Chinese claim Wang's capture by the Japanese is plain illegal kidnaping, and right there is where this Shanghai unpleasantness is slipping down the line to gangdom.

The Chinese threaten reprisals—not officially, of course, because that would not be diplomatic, but unofficially it's being noised about and not without pride that China and particularly Shanghai is the habitat of some of the most daring and capable bands of professional kidnapers that this world has ever seen.

Some Chinese even claim that kidnaping as a business was invented in China long before chopsticks and pigtails and, of course, if the Japanese boys think they can come in and compete with the native industry—well. Chinese merchants and men of wealth in Shanghai welcome this new direction for the efforts of Chinese kidnapers.

Local magnates are tired of being held for ransom and having to employ personal armies to guard them night and day. Many of them are provided with bullet-proof automobiles with special devices working from the rear seat by which the owner can make his car immovable and set off a loud screeching siren at the same time—all this to outwit kidnapers ever on the watch for victims.

Since the Japanese kidnaping of Gen. Wang, the local Al Capones and "Legs" Diamonds are rapidly changing in public esteem from criminals to patriots who will be candidates for decorations and national acclaim and possible public office as soon as they kidnap Gen. Uyeda or Admiral Nomura or any Japanese officials of high rank.

Grizzled old professional soldiers of other nations now here are shedding bitter tears in their tiffin plates. They hold it shameful that their honorable profession of arms has sunk so low that war has to be fought without declarations and then has to be waged with the assistance of high-binders and kidnapers.

Mr. Kellogg sure started something.

Both sides are just as sick of this war as the League of Nations and the whole world is sick of it—just as sick as several hundred thousand peaceful neutral foreign residents of Shanghai, who have been living through a month long nightmare of air raids, artillery duels, machine gun barrages, house-to-house fighting and sniping.

SICK SHANGHAI

Shanghai is sick of the pestilential stench of bodies still rotting in the ruins of Chapei.

Chinese and Japanese business men are mutually sick of closed shops, idle employes, wasted opportunity, lost time, high insurance and prospects of higher taxes.

Homeless and foodless refugees are sick of walking barefooted over frozen streets looking for vacant spots to ease the burdens of their household goods, their families and to rest weary bones.

The thousands of British, French, Italian, Portuguese and American soldiers, sailors and marines are sick of the extra duty, long hours, tiresome vigils, cold rations in this senseless, useless comedy of objectless war which neither belligerent acknowledges is a war.

Ministers, consuls and diplomatic representatives of a dozen nations are sick and tired of the silly, childish game of protests and counter protests, of apologies and excuses, misrepresentations and misconstructions from both sides.

In spite of all the apologies and subterfuges about anti-Japanese agitations, boycott and sniping, Chinese have resisted the punitive efforts of the Japanese forces just to show them they couldn't crowd the Chinese army out of South China the same as they did in Manchuria.

TOO PROUD TO QUIT

As far as I can figure out, this fight has gone to that stage where both sides have forgotten what it is they started fighting about—if there was anything—and are now just fighting because they are each of them too proud to quit.

I suspect also that both sides are ready to quit if they can only find some way where both of them can roll down their sleeves and walk away shouting:

"By golly, I showed him."

Let's keep out of it ourselves and also keep the missionaries out of it—if we can.

Democrats Charge Attempt By Opponents to Shift Blame for Depression

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Senate Democrats today called the forthcoming inquiry into short selling on the stock market an attempt of the administration to "find an alibi for the panic."

The assertion was made by Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, with the acquiescence of Senator Connally, of Texas, while the House Agriculture Committee was receiving new protests against the restrictions that have been proposed before it against short selling on the commodity exchanges.

Led by Russell Clark, president of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, a group of cotton brokers and market officials told the committee the power to stop short selling was too much to place in the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture and that the limitation of speculation which would follow would have an ill effect on prices.

The Senate Banking Committee will begin its short selling inquiry tomorrow with William R. Perkins, a New York attorney, as its first witness.

Meanwhile, signers of the wet bloc petition for consideration of a state-control prohibition amendment reached 130 of the 145 required today shortly after the House convened.

Representative Sullivan (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, was the first to add his name this week. Almost immediately Representative Harlan (Dem.), of Ohio, and Representative Niedringhaus (Rep.), of Missouri, joined the petitioners.

The Republican steering committee decided today to give the right of way in the Senate to the Democratic tariff bill immediately after disposition of the Norris anti-injunction bill now before the Senate, and follow it with the Reed resolution for an investigation of the effect on tariff rates of fluctuations in international exchange.

The Hale naval construction bill for bringing the American fleet to the full strength allowed by existing treaties was given third place on the program.

Supporters of the navy bill had sought to have it brought up next and may yet challenge the committee's decision on the floor.

HOSPITAL FUND BILL UPHELD

HARRISBURG, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—The Dauphin County Court today sustained the validity of the 1931 act appropriating $7,151,500 among about 160 hospitals of the state.

The opinion, written by Judge William M. Hargest, was rendered in the suit brought by the Constitutional Defense League to restrain state fiscal officers from making payments. The league contended the act was unconstitutional because it violated provisions that no act may contain more than one subject, which must be clearly stated in its title.

The costs were placed upon the plaintiff.

The suit was filed by the league after its officers had criticized the inclusion of appropriations to five hospitals which the league maintained had not established their right to a nonsectarian classification.

SEVEN PAROLED IN VOTE FRAUD

Five members and two overseers of the election board of the Seventh District, Fifth Ward, who pleaded guilty to returning a false count in the primary last year, were paroled for one year by Judge Elder W. Marshall. He said it was not a case of wilful violation of the election laws. Those pleading were Thurston McDowell, judge; S. Rudick and Louis Rosen, inspectors; Sam Spokane and Frank Soloman, clerks, and Leonard Payne and Albert Frankel, overseers.

County Detective David Drexler testified the return of the board in the aldermanic fight gave Martin Griffin 239 and Robert Logan 151. The correct count was Griffin 73 and Logan 353. McDowell said the board had given the correct count to watchers when made, but that later, in filling the return sheet, a mistake was made.

Alderman Logan said he had received the proper count the night of the election. Judge Marshall said he believed the story of McDowell, inasmuch as Logan's supporters had been given the correct count as soon as the vote had been tabulated.

Sun Yat Sen's Widow Suffers Breakdown

SHANGHAI, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Mme. Sun Yat Sen, widow of China's first president, suffered a nervous breakdown today, brought on, her doctors said, by overwork.

She, with hundreds of other Chinese women, has been doing her bit in relief work and tending the wounded.

SEABURY FACES NEW ATTACK

By RAYMOND I. BORST

International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 29.—Democrats were wheeling their big guns into position today for a slashing attack on Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter commitee, when the Republican bill appropriating an additional $250,000 for the committee comes up for final action tonight in the Assembly.

Stung by Seabury's vigorous arraignment of Tammany Hall and his veiled reference to Gov. Roosevelt in a recent speech at Cincinnati, Democrats in the lower house of the Legislature plan to put Seabury "on the spot" for the last time at the present session.

When the $250,000 bill was pushed through the Senate last week, Democratic members of that house characterized Seabury as "the most despicable character in history." Assembly Democrats said today that would be "tame" in comparison with what they intend to say about Seabury in opposing the appropriation measure.

Hyde Scored in Fight On House Job Fund

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Representative Warren said today in a statement it was a "piece of unmitigated gall for Secretary Hyde to upbraid the Democratic House" for passing the $132,500,000 emergency road bill to give people jobs when the Republican party "sat impotent and suggested nothing."

Bankers Extend Credit to Germany

BASEL, Switzerland, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Arrangements have been practically completed, it was learned today, to renew the $100,000,000 Central Bank credit to Germany from March 4, when it expires, to June 4, with 10 per cent amortization. The Bank of France consented to the extension, it was said, in view of the amortization provision. This bank, the Bank of England and the American Federal Reserve Bank are the principal creditors.

HOOVER SCORED FOR ATTACK ON GARNER

Texas Senator Flays Moses As Spokesman; Sees Plot Against Leading Democrats

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—A charge that President Hoover's spokesmen plan to "destroy" every prominent Democrat who might become the Democratic nominee for President this year, was made in the Senate this afternoon by Senator Connally (Dem.), of Texas.

He criticized Senator Moses (Rep.), of New Hampshire, a President spokesman, for attacking Speaker Garner, of the Democratic House. Connally said Moses was carrying out a policy of warfare against all prominent Democrats. He said:

"Now that the administration has secured all the legislation it desires from the Speaker of the Democratic House it is ready to open up its guns in an effort to destroy the Speaker and to destroy any other person who becomes so prominent in the Democratic party as to loom as a possible nominee for the presidency."

SEES BREAK IN CONGRESS

Connally declared Moses' attack on Garner "ended the era of co-operation" between the two major parties in Congress. He drew this conclusion, he said, because of Moses' "intimate contact with the President" and "because he is known as the spokesman here for Mr. Hoover."

The Moses-Garner row began when the Speaker said President Hoover had led the nation into a panic. Moses retorted that Garner might just as well have blamed the President for the revolution in Russia, the decline of coffee prices in Brazil and the World War. Connally said:

"So far as governmental influence had any effect on the situation, the President and the administration are most certainly responsible for leading the nation into a panic. The Republican party has been in control in both branches of Congress and of every agency of the government. President Hoover was the national leader. If any one led us into the panic or backed us into the panic, it was the President and the Republican House and Senate."

REVIEWS REIGN

The Texan reviewed economic conditions in 1928, when Mr. Hoover was elected, with present conditions. He recited Mr. Hoover's pledges to continue prosperity and referred to the President's campaign declarations that "the poor house is vanishing from us" and "we are in sight of the day when poverty will be banished from the nation."

He told of the Republican slogans of "a job for every man" and "from the full dinner pail to the full garage." He said:

"Now we have 8,000,000 men and women out of work, in need of something to put in their dinner pails. The President is responsible."

A verbal tilt occurred between Connally and Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, when the latter asked what the Democrats intended to do if they got into power and what was Speaker Garner's stand on prohibition. Connally replied:

"I am not speaking for any candidate, nor am I authorized to speak for the Democratic party. I will say, however, if de do not have more co-operation than the Senator from Iowa gives his party leaders we won't get very far.

"He only wears the Republican label in name. He admits he is in agreement with what I say, but he is afraid to join us."

Brookhart said, amid laughter:

"The only thing I am afraid of is jumping out of the frying pan into the fire."

Connally retorted:

"Well, I agree the Senator from Iowa is in one or the other most of the time."

Farm Boy's Trial For Murder Delayed

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Feb. 29.—(INS.)—The trial of Stanley Wisner, 14-year-old "model" farm boy, charged with the murder of Elmer Bartholomew, 28-year-old farmer, was postponed this afternoon until Tuesday morning.

It also was revealed that defense counsel has not yet definitely decided whether their client shall offer a plea of guilty or not, when the case is called.

BILLY PHILLIPS A HALF HOUR LATER . . . HIS DOG BACK HOME

Ill Boy Gets Pet Dog Back After WCAE Appeal

Two-year-old Billy Phillips replaced his tears with a smile today, hugged the dog that had been lost for a week, and probably nominated Louis Kaufman, the Sun-Telegraph globe-trotter news reporter over Station WCAE as his favorite announcer.

Sick for a month, Billy's condition wasn't made any better when his spaniel "We-We," disappeared a week ago.

An hour later "We-We" trailed into Billy's bedroom in his home at 331 Cedarville street, and jumped into his master's arms.

With the dog was Louis Campana, of 4615 Carrol street. Louis said "We-We" had followed his mother, Mrs. Carmela Campana, home a week ago. Louis said he didn't know who "We-We's" owner was until he heard Kaufman's broadcast today.

Louis said he returned the spaniel as soon as possible because he had lost a dog once himself and he realized how Billy must have felt.

Love of Fleshpots Blamed For Wars by Pope

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—The world's love of the fleshpots, Pope Pius XI declared in a radio broadcast directed particularly to the Chinese and Japanese in the Far East, "is the source of disputes and wars that always have afflicted and still today afflict the world."

His address was based on the virtues of Venerable Maria Assunta Pallotta, who died in China as a missionary, and he said he hoped his benediction would be "an augury of universal peace and prosperity."

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Poor reception conditions over the Atlantic yesterday kept the United States from rebroadcasting the voice of Pope Pius XI on the occasion of a beatification ceremony at Vatican City. It was the second time this year that reception from HVJ, the Papal short wave station, has been such as to prevent a rebroadcast in America. The previous one was on February 12.

PLOT TO 'FRAME' EX-PAL DENIED BY BELL

Fourth Man Named in Death Conspiracy Not Located; Accused Appear in Irons

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 29.—Two of the former associates of Tony Bell, who is alleged to have confessed participation in the slaying of Constable John Donohue, in 1929, were held for court on murder charges and the identity of a third was disclosed by Bell before Justice of the Peace William Q. Maust today.

Bell told a graphic story of events leading up to the killing and testified that the windshield, steering gear and other parts of the death car were wiped off to prevent finger prints being taken.

Those held were Robert C. Bledsoe, former Fayette County detective, and Cosmo Stangoni, of Masontown.

THIRD MAN NAMED

The third companion of Bell on the night of the killing, July 30, 1929, he revealed as Caimello Sturilla, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Connellsville and Uniontown.

Sturilla has not been apprehended.

Before testifying Bell branded a story from Buffalo, N. Y., that he had made his purported confession in order to "frame" Bledsoe, false.

Bell testified he had first met Donohoe when the latter was a constable in 1922. He related that Stangoni, a bootlegger, of Masontown, had come to him and said Donohoe was demanding money to protect Stangoni's still from being raided. Bell at that time was police chief of Masontown.

"Cosmo (Stangoni) told me he didn't intend to pay Donohoe anything, but that he didn't want to go to jail. I told him to wait and I would see what I could do.

"I went to Bledsoe, as I thought he was a friend of Donohoe, with a proposal that he get Donohoe to lay off. I discovered in my talk with Bledsoe that he and Donohoe were not friends. I talked with Bledsoe during the first two weeks of July, 1929.

"I learned from Bledsoe about Donohoe's connection with the 'slaughterhouse still.'

"Bledsoe said he had paid Donohoe money, and Donohoe was supposed to pay it to the district attorney's office, but he hadn't done so and had double-crossed him.

BLEDSOE BLAMED

"We talked for a while and Bledsoe finally suggested 'rubbing Donohoe out.' I told him I would go halfway. We agreed then and there that I was to place Donohoe in a position where Bledsoe was to kill him.

"Bledsoe and I had a date to meet at 11:30 the night of July 30. Cosmo was to leave Masontown with Donohoe at the same time. Bledsoe was 20 minutes late. He had with him an Italian I didn't know at the time.

"When we encountered Donohoe's car, driven by Cosmo, we trailed it until we saw it stop in a blind lane near the Heien Hess farm. They stopped and I stopped my car containing Bledsoe, his Italian companion and myself.

"I stopped about 20 feet behind Donohoe's car. Cosmo got out of Donohoe's car. Bledso got out first and Sturilla afterward. Bledsoe and Sturilla walked up on each side of it. Then Bledsoe and Sturilla started to shoot. Ten or 11 shots were fired. Bledsoe had a 45 automatic and Sturilla a 32 caliber revolver."

PROWLER SLAYS WIFE, MAN SHOT

The Stewarts retired about midnight. A few minutes later the glass of their bedroom window crashed and three shots were fired. The first struck Stewart in the side and chest. The second struck Mrs. Stewart's head. She died instantly. The third went wild. After the last shot, the killer shouted:

"Throw out your money."

Stewart struggled from the building but saw no one. State Troopers George W. Kercher and Elmer E. Schmoyer are working on the case. Belief was expressed that the gunman shot through the window with the intention of frightening the building's occupants.

STATE CONTROL OF RATES VALID

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today upheld action of a three-judge Federal Court refusing to grant the Western Distributing Company, a subsidiary of Cities Service Company, an increase of gas rates in Eldorado, Kan.

Involved in the case was a question of far-reaching importance in the fixing of public utility rates—the right of a state commission to fix directly or indirectly, the price which shall be charged by a pipe line company for gas. The court's decision favors the state commission.

Although affecting only the small city of Eldorado, the case is the outgrowth of years of litigation and controversy over gas rates charges in various Kansas cities by subsidiaries of the giant Cities Service Company.

CAPONE IN FEAR AS PEN LOOMS

CHICAGO, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—"Scarface Al" Capone is doing some worrying over his day of atonement—the 11 years he was sentenced to serve in prison for income tax evasion.

Since October 24 he has been confined in the county jail awaiting outcome of the appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which upheld his conviction Saturday. But the way Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson worded the sentence, Capone must go to a federal penitentiary before he can receive credit on the 11 years.

So while his attorneys prepared for another move in the courts today, "Scarface Al" was making up his mind whether he should stay in the jail here or move to a penitentiary pending a petition to the Circuit Court for a rehearing or an appeal to the Supreme Court. There was a possibility the prosecution may decide for him by asking the Appellate Court to order his transfer.

Steck Again Seeks Seat in U. S. Senate

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Former United States Senator Daniel F. Steck, of Ottumwa, today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. He advocated a prohibition referendum. Steck was the Democratic nominee in 1924 and was seated by the Senate after an election contest with Smith W. Brookhart. He was defeated in 1930 by Senator L. J. Dickinson.

Pinchot Puts State's Jobless at Million

HARRISBURG, Feb. 29.—(INS.)—In a telegram to United States Senator Hiram Bingman, Gov. Gifford Pinchot today again estimated the jobless in Pennsylvania at 1,000,000, but was unable to tell just how many people are starving.

The Governors telegram was in reply to one from the Senator. In his reply the Governor gave the same figures and made the same charges that he recently has repeated so frequently.

Women Rule Town, Fine All Bachelors

everything at once. It has provided a two or three billion dollar dole for high finance, suffering from crippled credit. It may get around to the jobless, after a while. And, anyhow, ours is not a government of the jobless, for the jobless or by the jobless.

It is a government of, for and by big business, and for the present, cruel as it may sound, that is the best plan. Big business can and does supply jobs, although it fails occasionally, when its managers become too greedy.

Sold Papers for Suffrage, Now Praises Its Results

Twenty years ago today, Mrs. Margery McCleary Hoffman, of the Sun-Telegraph classified advertising department, sold copies of the Leap Year Day edition of the old Pittsburgh Sun dedicated to Women's Suffrage, on the streets of Pittsburgh. The money she received was turned over to a fund for the furtherance of suffrage among the fair sex. She said today.

Mrs. Hoffman

"These 20 years have seen women become congresswomen, state representatives, members of school boards and take their rightful places in civic and political affairs. The men who bought papers from the day the bill was passed would have laughed at such a possibility."

Mrs. Hoffman won the record in Pittsburgh last May for soliciting 425 ads by telephone in one week. She averages 10,000 ads, or 40,000 lines a year, she says. She has been an ardent politician ever since women have voted, and served as committeewoman of the Fourth Ward in McKeesport, her home, for two years. She was in the service of the intelligence department of the Knights of Columbus for 18 months during the war, visiting 16 camps and 27 states.

For the last seven years she has been appointed part-time swimming instructor at the McKeesport municipal swimming pool.

SLAYER OF WIFE DIES IN CHAIR

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Feb. 29.—(INS.)—Joseph Roman, Cambria County slayer, today paid with his life in Rockview's electric chair for the fatal shot he fired into his wife's body in a vengeance-seeking fit of rage.

Guards strapped him into the electric chair at 7:01 o'clock this morning. At 7:02 current sent his straining form lurching against his bonds. Four minutes later Dr. W. A. Barrett, prison physician, pronounced him dead.

No one claimed Roman's body and he will be buried in the state's burial plot, near the penitentiary.

Roman shuffled into the death chamber a melancholy figure. His eyes were fixed and staring. He made no last-minute comment over the decree of the state that he forfeit his life for that of his wife, Martha, whom he killed because she sent him to jail when he deserted her.

FINNISH ARMY BATTLES WITH FASCISTS

Overthrow of Communists Sought in March Upon Helsingfors; City Guarded

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Fighting broke out 25 miles from Helsingfors this afternoon between government troops and a force of several thousand Fascist citizens marching on the capital.

The Fascists, who call themselves the Lapua, whose professed objective is the destruction of Communism in Finland, sent a message to the President this morning demanding that the cabinet resign and that a new one be chosen whose members would pledge themselves to destroy Communism.

Before dawn this morning the troops moved out to strategic points around the capital and detachments of artillery garrisoned outside the town moved in to prepare to defend the city if necessary.

All entrances to the city were guarded by troops fully equipped with machine guns and heavy ordnance. All trains were stopped and searched 25 miles out from the city limits, and it was announced that the vigilant measures would be continued as long as danger threatened.

Thousands of additional members of the Lapua (Fascist) movement, the objective of which is to put down Finnish communism, were reported concentrated at Hameenlinna, 70 miles from Helsingfors, where Lapua leaders called a meeting for today.

MASS FUNERAL FOR 38 MINERS

POCAHONTAS, Va., Feb. 29.—(INS.)—Stricken by one of the worst major disasters of recent years, this little soft coal community today united in preparations for a mass funeral for 38 mine workers, victims of a mysterious blast that shattered the Boissevain mine of the Pocahontas Fuel Company early Saturday.

Although more than 48 hours had elapsed since the blast let go, only 21 bodies had been recovered today. Seventeen men, still missing, undoubtedly met death either in the explosion or from gas which spread through the workings, according to mine officials. Only seven of the trapped men were unmarried. One victim was the father of 10 children.

Scores of trained men, volunteers and comrades of those trapped two and one-half miles back in the basin main section, equipped themselves with gas masks and entered the shaft Saturday. Rescue work was hampered by recurring falls of slate.

Four Horsemen Of Bridge Win Another Title

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—P. Hal Sims and his famous "Four Horsemen" of contract bridge added another prized trophy to their collection of silverware last night—the Curt H. Reisinger cup for the eastern team of four championship.

They defeated Mrs. Ely Culbertson and her Bridge World team in a gruelling final match yesterday. Their net plus was 2,965 points.

The run of the cards left plenty of room for alibis—and claims of prowess. Distribution throughout the match was extraordinary. A majority of the 40 hands held game and many held slams, a situation that always paves the way for high scoring and heavy sets.

Sims himself, his hair touseled as he lugged the heavy cup into a room where photographers waited for him and his teammates, Oswald Jacoby, Willard S. Karn and David Burnstine, had a simple explanation. He said:

"The boys played beautifully, all of them. That's about all I can say."

Mrs. Culbertson and her team, Baron Waldemar von Zedtwitz, Theodore A. Lightner and M. J. Gottlieb, had no excuses, though admitting they had a number of bad breaks. It was a good match, they said, and well played.

The match was the last of the eastern championships played at the Hotel Roosevelt last week. To reach the finals, the Sims and Culbertson teams eliminated 22 others representing the pick of eastern experts.

BLUM TO HEAD GIMBEL'S HERE

Jacques Blum, vice president and director of Gimbel's Pittsburgh department store since last October, has been named president, succeeding James Hammond, who resigned to become publisher of the Detroit Times.

Mr. Blum

At 36, Blum becomes one of the youngest department store heads in the country. He began his business career with Wanamaker's, Philadelphia, with which he became associated after a course of study in the University of Pennsylvania. Prior to joining Gimbel's he was general manager of Meyer-Jonasson's, with which he was identified for 10 years.

Detroit Police War On 981 Speakeasies

DETROIT, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Detroit's 981 recognized speakeasies, survivors of 1,561 last August, face a police war of extinction.

The figures are from compilations made by police precinct commanders. The threat was voiced yesterday by Police Commissioner James K. Watkins, who said the known saloons would be picketed by patrolmen in their turn as long as is necessary "to drive every last one of them out of business."

Mrs. Hoover Delays Trip for Funeral

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover has delayed her trip to Florida to attend the funeral of a friend, Mrs. Howard E. Coffin, wife of the Detroit motor magnate.

Mrs. Hoover and her party arrived here aboard the Department of Commerce steamship Sequoia Saturday night. They were expected to continue to Miami Sunday, but Mrs. Hoover decided to remain until after services for Mrs. Coffin today.

CRIPPLED WIFE ATTACKED IN HONOLULU

International News Service.

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 29.—Racial passions flamed anew today in Honolulu, "paradise of the Pacific," after another white woman was attacked by a native.

Mrs. Kathleen Hope, 25, crippled wife of John N. Hope, a machinists' mate on the U. S. Submarine C-28, was robbed and attacked in her home while her husband was en route to San Pedro, Cal., with his vessel.

Police arrested an Oriental, but Mrs. Hope was unable positively to identify him, as he had worn a mask. She said, however, her assailant either was a Japanese or a Chinese, as his mask had fallen from his face before he left her beach home.

Mrs. Hope said she was alone in her home when the man entered and demanded money. She gave him $4 and he left, demanding that she remain quiet for 30 minutes.

ASSAILANT RETURNS

The robber went next door to the home of R. D. Curry, a naval electrician. Mrs. Curry was alone. While the bandit was terrorizing Mrs. Curry, Mrs. Hope screamed and the man returned to the Hope home, tied her, gagged her with silk stockings and attacked her.

Mrs. Curry and Mrs. Hope notified police. At the emergency hospital physicians said Mrs. Hope had not been beaten. She related:

"I was too terrified to scream when the robber entered the house. He pointed a pistol at me and demanded all the money in the house. I had 4 paper dollars.

"He took them and warned me not to call anyone for 30 minutes. Thinking, however, he had left the neighborhood, I screamed to Mrs. Curry, my next door neighbor, in a few minutes. To my horror the same man came back, tied and gagged me. His mask fell down. He was either a Japanese or a Chinese.

ROBBER EATS CANDY

Mrs. Hope said her assailant was about 30 years old. She declared he told her he knew her husband was at sea and that Mrs. Curry's husband was at work in the Navy yard.

Mrs. Curry said that when the bandit was unable to find money in her home he ate several pieces of candy he found on the dining room table—then hurried back to the Hope home, when he heard Mrs. Hope scream.

Police scoured Honolulu to round up all suspicious characters. Navy officials were taking no part, announcing their policy would be to allow Honolulu police to handle the situation.

Royal Stork Flying To Italian Princess

ROME, Feb. 29.—(Universal.)—Announcement of the forthcoming visit of the stork to the palace of Crown Prince Humbert, of Italy, and the former Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium, is expected to be made officially in a few days.

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure that covered the Far Northwest on Saturday morning is now located over Eastern Ontario. It produced some precipitation over its path, but little precipitation. The cold wave and precipitation this morning is in the Far North. Low pressure now prevails over British Columbia and extends eastward over the Rocky Mountains to Western Texas with a marked central depression in Montana. It is causing rain or snow in the Far Northwest. There was no rain over the southern states since Saturday morning. A high pressure area, centered over Manitoba, and extending southward over the plains states is causing a change to colder over the plains states, but the temperatures are still above normal over most of the country. There is no indication of cold weather over this section for the next several days.

River Conditions.

LAMONT'S SON OFF TO TAKE SOVIET JOB

Says Commerce Secretary Approves Plan to Work For Russia in Meat Crisis

International News Service

DENVER, Feb. 29.—Robert P. Lamont, Jr., son of the Secretary of Commerce, was en route to Washington today for a round of conferences before sailing next week for Russia to outline a program aimed to aid Soviet officials in improving the livestock situation in that country. Lamont said:

"It is purely a personal affair, without a political or official significance. The livestock problem is a serious one for Russia and it will be my chief aim to improve efficiency of herds and increase the supply of meat for the Russian people."

FATHER APPROVES

Lamont said he had discussed his plans with his father, and added:

"My father has approved."

Negotiations for Lamont's visit to Russia were conducted with the Amtorg Corporation, representatives in this country of the Russian Soviet government. Lamont said:

"There has been no definite agreement made, except that I am to spend several weeks going over with Moscow officials a plan that will improve the quality and increase in every way the efficiency of cattle and sheep in Russia. If my program is satisfactory to the Soviet officials I may decide to accept a contract as breeding expert for the Russian government."

$50,000 A YEAR HINTED

Sources close to Lamont disclosed that a salary of $50,000 a year had been mentioned during Lamont's negotiations with the Soviet representatives.

Lamont owns a 10,000-acre ranch in the Perry Park district, 25 miles south of Denver. He has specialized for a dozen years in Herefords and many of his cattle have taken prizes in national and international stock shows.

Lamont's wife, the former Frances Kent, widely-known as a sculptress, will not accompany him.

Hook, Undertaker, In Legislature Race

Joseph A. Hook, Jr., funeral director in the Fifth Ward for the past 26 years, has announced his candidacy for Republican nomination for the Legislature from the First District. Hook declared he favored anti-chain store legislation; strict regulation of public utilities; federal unemployment relief; payment of the remainder of the soldier bonus; a $25,000,000 state housing program; safeguarding of bank depositors; labor unions and relief for widows and aged.

THE STORY OF JOHN N. GARNER

By George Rothwell Brown

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc. All Rights Reserved)

Texan Firm Backer Of Clark in War On Cannon

CHAPTER IX.

John N. Garner, in his early days in the House of Representatives, felt crushed and smothered. And no wonder!

The most ruthless political oligarchy that had ever appeared in America ruled it with an iron fist.

At the head of this organized despotism stood Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, the Speaker. The rules by which he governed like a Czar had been perfected by Thomas B. Reed. The machine which he dominated was small. It was the perfect close corporation.

The heart of this machine was the Committee on Rules, of which the Speaker himself was the chairman, and whose members he appointed.

In fact, the Speaker named all the committees, and appointed their chairmen, and moreover, he used the power of "recognition" in a way that enabled him to dominate the House by ignoring, in a legislative way, those who were outside the pale.

There were rumblings against this autocracy in the Fifty-eighth Congress, but they were faint. Storm clouds grew darker in the Fifty-ninth Congress, where men like Garner, of Texas, of the minority party, had little or no voice in the making of important laws. The Speaker and a handful of Republican leaders determined which bills should be passed, and which should not be passed. From this political tyranny there could be no redress save through force.

As was natural, the Democrats, Garner among them, were sullen and resentful. On the Republican side an insurgent movement began, at first so puny that it was laughed at by the bosses.

President Taft called the Sixty-first Congress in extraordinary session, and it met on March 15, 1909, for the purpose of enacting a new tariff law.

Champ Clark Fights

Mr. Taft, singularly lacking in clairvoyance, did not perceive that this law, plus insurgency, were to spell his political doom.

There was one man on the Democratic side of that House who was an orator, a statesman, a parliamentarian of exceptional skill and learning, and a grim fighter.

This was the Democratic leader, Champ Clark, of Missouri. The lieutenants trained in democratic government by him are today the leading spirits of the House of Representatives under a new and wholesome regime.

On the opening day of the extra session, Champ Clark arose in his place and offered an amendment to the rules, removing the Speaker from the chairmanship of the Rules Committee, and transferring from the Speaker to the House itself the power to appoint this committee. It also increased the membership of the committee from 5 to 15 members. It was the first attempt to break down "Cannonism." From the point of view of the ruling oligarchy, it was as deadly as dynamite.

MRS. JOHN N. GARNER . . . . AT THE SPEAKERSHIP ELECTION

John N. Garner, a devoted follower of Champ Clark, voted with his leader. The motion was lost, the supporters mustering but 180 votes against the 203 commanded by the oligarchy. Of the 180, only 166 were of Champ Clark's own party. Fourteen insurgents boldly braved "Uncle Joe" Cannon to his face, and suffered for it by loss of place and influence in the House.

Calls It Great Battle

In reply Champ Clark said that the liberals of the House had entered upon a great battle.

"We had to fight the power of the machine in this House," said he, "and nobody appreciates the power of the machine more than I do. We had to fight the influence of the President of the United States, new in office, with the pap undistributed, and lots of hungry people. In addition to that the entire force of the cabinet was enlisted against us. In addition to that the 'regular' Senators were enlisted against us, and whether they have drafted the Supreme Court or not I do not know."

A few Democrats did not stand with Clark in this first fight for the enfranchisement of the House of Representatives, but Garner stood with Clark, then and thereafter.

On July 31, 1909, the House finally voted to agree to the conference report on the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, which passed, on this, the final and decisive ballot, by the narrow margin of 195 to 183. Here again John N. Garner followed his great leader, Champ Clark, and voted against the bill, which finally became law, by the President's signature, August 5. It was William Howard Taft's political death warrant. But it was a good omen for Garner.

In the following session of the same Congress, Garner took part in the most momentous political revolution in the history of the United States, in which he fought shoulder to shoulder with the leader of his party.

Fought Tariff Bill That Doomed Taft; Won Party Praise

The second revolt against "Cannonism occurred on March 16, 1910. A parliamentary reform known as "Calendar Wednesday" had previously been adopted, to permit members to obtain action on bills which the oligarchy had hitherto smothered in committee. On this historic date Speaker Cannon sought to over-ride this "Calendar Wednesday," there was an appeal from the decision of the chair, and Cannon was overruled.

Follow Up Advantage

The following day this advantage was followed up by George W. Norris, now the progressive Senator from Nebraska, who offered a resolution proposing to abolish the Committee on Rules, of five members, and substitute an elective committee of 15, which should select its own chairman, and of which the Speaker should not be a member. It was practically identical with Champ Clark's proposal which had been made a year before.

Garner threw himself into this fight on the side of Champ Clark. The battle was the most memorable in the annals of Congress. Cannonism was dethroned, and for the first time since the establishment of the government, by this and subsequent reforms, the Speaker was stripped of his arbitrary powers, was removed from the Rules Committee, was deprived of the right to name the committees, and the ruling power in the House was restored to the membership of the House, where it still reposes.

Although this is commonly referred to as an Insurgent victory, the ground work for the revolutionary reform was laid by Champ Clark, of Missouri, and was made possible only in consequence of the loyal support of Democrats like John N. Garner, and progressive Republicans of the stamp of Norris, of Nebraska. They fought shoulder to shoulder, but without the whole body of Democratic votes the handful of Insurgent Republicans would have been powerless.

Progressive Influence

It was inevitable that a man of John N. Garner's natural aptitude for parliamentary strife, and of his inate sense of justice and fairness, should have been profoundly influenced by this progressive movement in the House of Representatives.

It did influence him in many ways. He became, for one thing, a student of and a recognized authority on the rules of the House. It was, and is, necessary for a member to know these rules in order to obtain his rights as the representative of a constituency, and secondly, to become a force in the House. Garner, from the outset, nursed the ambition to become a power in the body of which he was a member.

Fighting such a brave fight under such an inspiring leader as Champ Clark, the Texan became impregnated with the spirit of liberalism. And at the same time he gained an intimate knowledge of the machinery by which so vast a body as the House of Representatives is necessarily governed.

Garner emerged from this contest, which extended over a considerable period before all the reforms were finally accomplished, one of the most astute parliamentary leaders in the House, master of the rules and precedents, which are bewildering in their immense volume, having come down, as they have, from the first Congress in 1789.

Helps Elect Clark

Although the Republican party lost the House in the following elections, President Taft called the Sixty-second Congress in extra session on April 4, 1911, to consider Canadian reciprocity, and Garner had the great satisfaction of helping with his vote to elevate Champ Clark to the speakership.

Ten days later he voted with Clark in favor of the law providing publicity for campaign expenditures.

Garner followed the leadership of Clark so closely that he also voted for the reciprocity bill, although originally his district had been against the principle of reciprocity. Speaker Clark himself on this roll call took the floor and asked that his name be called that he might vote for it himself, an unusual thing for a speaker to do, except to break a tie.

By this time John N. Garner was recognized as one of the outstanding younger leaders on the Democratic side of the House.

His spurs had been won.

It would not be long before he received them.

Friday in the Johnston Avenue Baptist Church.

'T. R.' ASSUMES MANILA POST

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Fulfilling one of his father's cherished ambitions, Theodore Roosevelt today became Governor General of the Philippine Islands.

Immediately he promised to work for "the well being of the average Filipino." Sidestepping the delicate and perennial subject of Philippine independence in his inaugural address, he urged development of the islands until they are economically independent.

Greeted by an enthusiastic holiday crowd, the new Governor General took the oath of office on the family Bible upon which his father rested his left hand when he was sworn as President of the United States.

On the eve of Roosevelt's arrival, Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate, predicted the islands would be granted independence within two or three years if the present Congress fails to take such action.

LONDON, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Field Marshal Lord Plumer, 74, who underwent an operation Friday, was progressing favorably today.

Hungarian Official Slashed in Duel

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Two former high government officials have fought a duel with sabres, it became known today, and one of them, Elemer Hanko, was cut severely.

Hanko, at one time an official in the social welfare ministry, had called Imre Drehr, recently expelled from that ministry, a "swindler."

RALLIES CHEER MRS. MOONEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Mooney has some good news for her son, Tom, when she gets back to California.

After attending three meetings yesterday, all aimed at Mooney's release from San Quentin Prison, she said:

"All the thousands of people at those meetings, and at the other meetings I have attended here, are fighting to see my son free. This will be good news for my boy."

Some time during the week the 84-year-old mother of the imprisoned labor leader will visit Mayor Walker, returning the call he made when he was in California to argue for Mooney's pardon.

SEIZE GUNMAN, GIRL IN WILDS

BOSTON, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—With floodlights trained on the wilderness cottage in which he and a girl had secreted themselves at Greenfield, N. H., a squad of heavily-armed Boston police early today captured William E. (Bad Willie) Gray, notorious robber and escaped Maine convict.

Naked and weakened from two bullet wounds, Gray tottered from the doorway of the place after his girl companion had surrendered and collapsed in a snowbank.

Gray was wanted for the shooting here last Friday of Philip F. Sweeney, a detective, during a holdup. Officers, who brought Gray and his companion, Miss Rose Lyons, back to this city, said the suspect freely confessed the shooting of Sweeney.

Police Seek Lost Wilmerding Girl

Missing since February 18, the family of Miss Clara Cerbo, 20, of 164 State street, Wilmerding, have asked Police Chief S. M. Holden to aid in the search.

She is five feet tall, weighs 132 pounds and wore a black coat trimmed with gray fur and black hat.

VOLPE YOUTH, 5 OTHERS JAILED

The Volpe family, deposed political deaders of Wilmerding, is in the limelight again today with the arrest of Joseph Volpe, 18, a younger borther of John and Councilman James Volpe.

Borough police early this morning arrested six young men, including Joseph Volpe, in North Wilmerding, on charges of disorderly conduct. The prisoners, police said, were riding in a truck with the cut-out open. Police said they were compelled to use force as the six were drunk, disorderly and resisted arrest. A doctor rendered medical attention to several in the borough lockup.

Councilman Volpe, now on the minority side of the Borough Council, posted $15 for each youth's appearance before Burgess R. W. Bishop tonight.

Those arrested gave their names as Joseph Volpe, Bridge street; Anthony Bronzo, Bridge street; John DePhillips, Middle street; Joseph Narkus, Patton street; Elmer Youngshouse, State street, and Michael Masters, Bridge street.

BABY GORILLA'S RECOVERY NEAR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Two cups of water, a pear, part of an apple, two bananas and a tomato, convinced zoo authorities today that N'Gi, the young gorilla, is recovering from pneumonia.

He consumed all that food yesterday, after giving his keeper an affectionate, if rather feeble hug. Only a few days ago the rare 6-year-old from the African jungle was practically given up for lost by the three doctors attending him. Building an oxygen chamber around him turned the tide. Unless his heart weakens, they believe he should be well again in a few weeks.

The critical illness of the baby ape has caused more interest than the threat of death to many a nationally-known man. All the attention to N'Gi has brought Director Mann, of the zoo, a heavy mail, partly solicitous inquiries and suggestions, partly protests against spending so much money on an animal, no matter how rare and valuable, when many human beings need aid.

Pneumonia Spreads To Zoo at Toronto

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—The pneumonia epidemic among gorillas and other beasts of that ilk has spread to the Riverdale Zoo here, with Georgie, a young chimpansee, recuperating from a severe case.

Like N'Gi, the baby gorilla at the Washington Zoo, Georgie has been a tough patient. Today he recognized his keepers for the first time in many days.

Policeman Kills Man, Saves Mob Victim

HAMBURG, Germany, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—A policeman who was reported to have come to the aid of a prostrate man being kicked by a group of assailants, shot and killed a Nazi follower here today. The police said the officer had been mauled severely before he had fired into the group of Adolf Hitler's followers.

Bandits Rob Bank At Davenport, Iowa

DAVENPORT, Ia., Feb. 29.—(INS.)—The Home Savings Bank here was robbed of approximately $30,000 today by four men armed with revolvers, who tied up employes of the bank as they reported for work and forced the cashier to open the safe.

MANY CHILDREN WRITE ESSAYS IN CONTEST

Unconscious Humor Marks Some of Writings Based On Washington Address

Tiny hands and young minds have worked faithfully, struggling with the intricacies of diplomacy and politics foreign to their young minds.

The evidence of this is to be found in the essays on George Washington's Farewell Address, sent by those of tender years to the contest editor of the Sun-Telegraph.

CHILDISH HUMOR

Many gems of childish humor are found as the tots struggled to tell what they thought Washington meant. One little girl, just eight, wrote:

"It was too bad Gen. Washington's mother did not live to see her son President. But if she had, she'd been too old to realize it, anyhow."

The contest, open to all under 21, continues until April 4

FIVE CLASSES

The classification and prizes

The William Randolph Hearst gold cup and $100 for the best essay, not to exceed 100 words in length, in any class, by any person up to the age of 21 years.

For the best essay, not to exceed 1,000 words in length, by any person between the ages of 16 and 21, in or out of school, the Hearst gold medal; for second, silver medal, and third, bronze medal.

For the best essay, not to exceed 400 words in length, by any child in any junior high school, a gold medal; for second, a silver medal, and for third, a bronze medal.

For the best essay, not to exceed 400 words in length, by any child in the grammer grades, a gold medal, with silver medal for second, and bronze medal for third.

In each of the classes 2, 3, 4 and 5, there will be awarded 100 diplomas for honorable mention for the 100 best essays produced in each class after the first, second and third prizes have been awarded.

HIGH PAY HELD REVIVAL AID

High wages are a necessary factor in prosperity and the present low level will be forced upward through mass production of the machine age, it was predicted today by John H. Van Deventer, editor of Iron Age, who spoke before the Hungry Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Defending the machine age from the conception that working opportunities decrease with the added efficiency, Van Deventer declared government statistics over a 40-year period proved the number of workers increased. Citing the downward income trend as abnormal, he said:

"Conditions will compel us to go back to the former principle of beneficial progression of living standards. Large scale industries realize this fact. They will not tolerate the lower standard of living. Increased production from mass policy demands mass consumption and the higher wage scale will have to return."

Divine Law Defined By Baha'i Lecturer

Heaven can be defined as a system of world government based on Divine law, Howard C. Ives, national Baha'i lecturer, declared in an address before the Pittsburgh Baha'i Assembly, in Utility Hall, Philadelphia Building, last night. He said:

"The Kingdom of God is a government based on the laws of God. These laws express justice, kindness and the desire of all men for the happiness of all. Such laws cannot be made by selfish and provincial-minded men."

Chatham Village Gets Store Permit

Chatham Village, Mt. Washington, was assured of having its store building today when the Zoning Board of Adjustment granted a permit for a one-story building at 402-12 Bigham street, with a seven-foot setback. The Buhl Foundation, owner of the community, obtained a special ordinance from City Council changing the section from residential to a commercial district.

INCOME TAX RETURNS

Suggestions to Aid in Making Reports to Government

(This is the fifth of a series of articles planned to give assistance in making out federal income tax returns.)

In making out an income tax return, first of all be sure that you have the proper blank. For incomes of less than $5,000 derived chiefly from wages and salaries use form 1040A. For net incomes of more than $5,000 and incomes from a business, profession, rents, or sale of property, use form 1040. These forms can be obtained at the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue in the Federal Building at Fourth avenue and Smithfield street.

The form for the smaller incomes is comparatively simple and should not give much trouble to the average taxpayer. At the top of the blank is space for name, address, occupation and a list of questions, the answers to which will determine the amount of personal exemption to be allowed.

Then comes space for reporting income. There are four different headings under which different types of income are to be reported. These are self explanatory. This is followed by space for entering deductions which are exempt from tax.

The first of these is headed taxes paid. Under this may be entered all personal taxes and taxes on property paid during the year. Do not include federal income taxes in this deduction.

The next space is for listing contributions. Any gifts made to any corporation or fund organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable or educational purposes may be entered here. These contributions must be explained in detail on the back of the income tax form.

Most Pittsburghers have made contributions to churches, the welfare fund or similar organizations. These may be entered as reasonable deductions.

Other deductions which are allowed are interest paid on personal indebtedness, losses due to fire, storm or theft if not covered by insurance and bad debts. Deductions for bad debts must be explained by giving the details and the efforts made to collect.

PITT SPONSORS RETAIL COURSE

The research bureau of retail training, conducted by the University of Pittsburgh, will open its six spring courses tonight in the Joseph Horne and Kaufmann department stores. At Horne's the speakers will be Miss Grace D. Ely and David R. Craig. At Kaufmann's the speakers will be Gordon Grant, Andrew Connolly and Peter Bouterse. Classes will begin at 7 o'clock.

Each Monday night for six weeks the students will hear experts in their respective fields. On Monday night, April 11, there will be a banquet at which prizes will be awarded for best application of ideas gathered during the course.

111th Infantry Vets To Meet March 8

the man who feasted "Diamond Jim" Brady, the King of Sweden, Caruso, Bernhardt, the Vanderbilts, and other celebrities of stage, society, and politics, in his famous Broadway restaurant of a decade ago, is the son of a Chicago restaurant man. He studied law, changed his mind and followed in the footsteps of his father, apprenticing himself to the chef of the Cafe de Paris, and later becoming chef of the celebrated Marguery's of Paris, following which he opened his own New York restaurant, which made him world famous. He is now making public appearances in a limited number of large cities, giving suggestions for practical and appealing home dishes.

Mr. Rector, widely known to the past generation through the fame of his Broadway restaurant, and now known to millions of housewives as food consultant and cuisine director for the A & P stores, through his radio broadcasts, "Our Daily Food," will speak to Pittsburgh women on "Making Daily Foods Appeal to the Epicure." He will be accompanied by a French chef, who will demonstrate his recipes and formulas.

Mr. Rector will deliver the same lecture each day. Arrangements have been made for a large audience, but the capacity of the Auditorium is likely to be taxed each day, so come early to be assured of a seat.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Clothes Are No Measure of Person Who Wears Them

Does a poor girl have a chance in school—a lonely 17-year-old who "hasn't as many pretty clothes as the others?"

She should have a chance. This country is supposed to be a democracy, and young people, regardless of government, are naturally democratic. Yet many a youngster goes through school with an aching heart—is hit because her dad hasn't as big a bankroll as the other girl's dad.

Or is it because of something in the girl herself? Unhappy little Flo wants to know.

IS NOT POPULAR

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I am going to state my problem bluntly, as I am not very handy about writing things.

"The trouble is I am not popular. I seem to be suffering from an inferiority complex or something. I am 17 and in my last year at High, which is simply miserable to me.

"This school I go to has a lot of wealthy pupils in it who seem to judge you by what kind of clothes you wear. Or maybe that isn't really it. I don't know. Maybe there's some quality in me that repulses them. Anyway, I just have a few dresses, not of the best, but neat and of good grade, and right now, especially, I can't afford to buy any more.

"Oh, I do try to be nice in spite of everything, but honestly, I don't think there is a person in this world who is really glad to see me. They seem to avoid me. It makes me feel terrible—really terrible.

"I am down in the depths all the time. I've tried to analyze myself, but it's no use. I just can't figure out what is wrong.

SELF-CONSCIOUS

"I know I am self-conscious, but all this is making it worse. When I am introduced to anyone I just don't know how to act. I was rushed by a sorority when school opened, but now it seems to have been my last time. It hurts dreadfully. Of course, maybe I am just pitying myself. Am I?

"Will it always be this way, even after I'm out of school? Do you think folks will ever like me? Please help me. Rub it in hard if you think it's my fault. I guess I need it. But I am so wretched! "FLO."

Are they snobs? Do they avoid you because you can't dress as prettily as other girls? Perhaps a few—a very few—of them do. There are always stupid piggish creatures in every crowd. But most young people who are going through public school aren't like that. They take themselves and others naturally. They give friendliness where and when it is given to them.

And that is just where you're falling down, honey. Yes, I know how miserable you are and I am sorry for the loneliness and hurt, but honestly, I think you're making it for yourself.

You think that others are cold and cruel because your own heart is filled with self-pity and envy. You think that they are snobs because you, yourself, are a snob—putting false values on clothes and position.

Did it ever occur to you that the worst snobs in the world are poor people?

SHOULD FORGET CLOTHES

Normal, healthy young people from happy, comfortable homes seldom think about "dad's money." They want something that money cannot buy—real companionship.

So stop thinking about their good luck, and begin to offer them your natural, genuine, sincere self. The real you is rich and warm and sweet with what the world values—friendliness. But you can't express the real you if you're full of envy and self pity. Forget clothes and begin to take a warm, friendly interest in the people inside the clothes.

And here's another question. You think you're neglected, but how about the girls in school who have less than you have? Are you nice to them? Or do you turn your nose up at them and consider them "impossible"? If you can't be friends with them, you're not worthy of friendship from anyone else.

You need to find a new sense of values. You need to discover that clothes are no measure of the man or woman who wears them. And until you do you will be lonely and unsought, for you can't make people like you while you envy them.

Broadway a Hard Road for Beauty and Fame Short-Lived—Fay King

By FAY KING

Beautiful girls from everywhere struggle for a spot in the golden frame of bright lights on the big street.

But only the loveliest of lovely win that enviable place where approval and applause are the prize.

And, having won it, they cannot linger long. Newcomers are demanding their turn, and Broadway likes new and lovely faces.

So they must move on and for them Broadway is a three-way street.

One way is to marry well or accept the protection of a rich admirer.

One way is to study and go forward to stardom.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Shows Displeasure at Being Excluded from Job

I was glad that my back was turned to Dicky as he hurried through the open door saying "Find out what?" He patiently had heard Lillian's admonition to me, that there was one thing we must guard against.

"Don't ever let Dicky find out" she had begun—but the sentence had never been finished.

Knowing Dicky's high sense of honor I was sure that he purposely had interrupted Lillian's conversation with his playful question, because he did not wish to hear what it was that she did not want him to find out.

With a cowardice of which I was ashamed, I let Lil take the brunt of answering him as she is quicker of wit than I and she can keep her face absolutely unreadable while mine too often betrays my emotions.

"Madge, we are diskivered!" Lillian said with a little laugh, and I knew that she was racking her brain frantically to think of something which would satisfy the playful question which he had asked orally, and the secret one which he never would voice.

"Will you tell me," she turned on him with mock indignation—"what you mean by leaving the door ajar when you go out, so that you can come back and eavesdrop upon the conversation of two perfect ladies?"

"A perfect lady should have no secrets from her husband." Dicky's tone was as didactic as if he believed the archaic idea that marriage gave one sole dominion over another. But his eyes were dancing with mischief, and with relief I saw that he had not realized what it was that Lillian did not wish him to know.

"All right, Soames Forsyte," Lillian gibed. "But remember the old adage about what listeners hear concerning themselves! I was just advising Madge not to let you find out what a wonderful kick this playwriting thing gives her, for if you did you'd be jealous as—ask the censor for the missing word."

It was as artistic a bit of fiction as I ever had heard Lillian voice. Any trivial excuse would not have deceived Dicky for an instant, and his shrewd mind, once set off into conjectures as to what we were trying to keep from him, would soon have hit upon the truth, that Lillian had seen the caricature of himself which I subconsciously had drawn in the character of Vickers.

I shot a furtive glance at Lillian, and saw something in her apparently mirthful eyes which told me that she had a double purpose in what she had just said. She meant primarily, of course, to save Dicky from the humiliation of knowing she had seen the caricature of him. But I had a shrewd suspicion that she was grateful for the opportunity of putting into words something which was already in her thoughts.

For an infinitesimal fraction of a second I thought her sally had roused Dicky to anger. But whatever his secret reaction, he ignored it immediately, and the laugh with which he answered her was as natural-sounding as anything I ever heard from his lips.

"Oh, I'm jealous, all right," he said, lightly. "You've called the turn on it. I can see where in another year or two I shall be known as 'Mr. Madge Graham.' But I shall endeavor to endure even that if Madge will only promise to make these plays pay. If she'll bring in enough jack so that I can quit work, I should worry about anything else."

"I always knew you were a sapient lad," Lillian retorted, "but you haven't told me yet what changes you had to make. I thought the thing was a nifty piece of work as it stood, but, of course, I was typing so steadily that I was only able to get a general idea of it."

Dicky answered her promptly, and I breathed freely once more with the certainty that now he never would suspect that Lillian also had seen the caricature of him which so wounded him.

"Old Phil decided that he didn't like some of the speeches the character Vickers had, and he wanted the character to be a little more serious, sardonic high comedy instead of farce. That was all. He expressed himself as well pleased with the act as a whole."

"He'd better," Lillian said viciously. "But I was pretty sure he would approve. Phil's a bit temperamental, but the part of his brain which judges plays is functioning perfectly every minute of the time. When can I read the thing complete?"

"Any minute you wish." I spoke warmly, for I wished Lillian to feel how much I valued the aid she had given me. "It is all done except the final copy-reading which Dicky and I are going to do after dinner."

"Oh!" Lillian said, and there was a flatness in the monosyllable which told me that something in what I had said had offended or disappointed her. I knew what was wrong. She had typed all night from my dictation in order to finish this act, and in the revision she was summarily set aside. I wanted to ask her to join us in the revision, but I feared, on the other hand, to offend Dicky. She was not looking at me, and, involuntarily, I sent a glance of appeal to him.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Proper Diet Will Remedy Painful Results of Acidity

"My doctor says I have too much acid in my system and so I must diet."

We often hear this remark. The listener may have but a vague idea of what "too much acid" means. He has a still more vague idea of what to do to correct the trouble.

Dr. Copeland

The normal blood is alkaline. During life it never becomes really acid, but its alkalinity may become diminished. This may occur by reason of excessive formation of acid, or by insufficient excretion of acids.

Diet has powerful effect upon the secretion of acid. The lack of proper elimination from the bowels or kidneys has a marked influence upon its elimination.

The common symptoms of an excess of acid may be reminders of gout. There are pains in the joints, indigestion, nervousness, headaches, or eruptions of the skin. If the secretions of acid in the stomach are increased, there will be discomfort after meals or between meals.

The first step toward a cure is to obtain good elimination through the bowels, skin and kidneys. Next, there must be regulation of the patient's diet, particularly as regards the combinations of foods he habitually chooses.

For example, it is not wise to eat acid fruit, such as tomatoes or rhubarb, with a meal of starchy food. Better digestion is secured when the acid vegetables or fruit are eaten with a meat meal.

The acid of tomatoes interferes with the digestion of starch and produces indigestion, while vegetable salads, with French dressing made with lemon, may be safely eaten with starchy meals.

Let us consider the question of a suitable diet for those who have a tendency to excessive formation of acid. For these the following suggestions may be helpful.

The use of meat for the sufferer from too much acid depends somewhat upon certain things. For instance, gouty patients should partake sparingly of meat. In such cases, while meat is less objectionable than red meat. Boiled meats are better than roasted or fried, because in boiling most of the acid forming substances escape in the water. Salted meats, as ham or salted fish, are usually badly borne, as is any food with an excess of salt. Milk and eggs are commonly well digested and may be used to compensate for the partial abstinence from meat.

Where the excessive acidity appears as a digestive disorder, all stimulating food must be avoided. This includes condiments such as mustard, spices and pepper, which stimulate acid formation in the stomach. Meat may be taken, in moderation, as its digestion takes up some of the excess acid. Most vegetables are tolerated. Potatoes, spinach and asparagus may be taken. Peas and carrots are best eaten in the form of purees.

Fat decreases acid formation and may be taken in moderation. Butter and milk should be plentifully supplied, but no fried food should be included in the diet. Tea is permissible, but strong coffee is not advised.

Small meals taken at frequent intervals are preferable to heavy meals at longer intervals. For the feeling of burning in the stomach that often comes on about two hours after eating, a soda biscuit and a glass of milk will usually give relief.

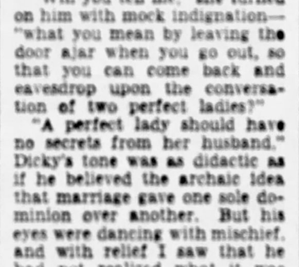
Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Ambitious and Lucky

The hand below was played by an exceptionally able player. His partner took advantage of that ability to push the declaration beyond reasonable limits, but good luck prevented losing a certain game for a doubtful small slam.



After three passes, B made a semi-forcing bid of 2-Spades. Z overcalled with 3-Hearts. A showed honest support by going 3-Spades. As a possible point saver Y bid 4-Hearts. B showed no losers in hearts, as well as surplus values, by bidding 5-Hearts. Z passed. A should have contented himself with 5-Spades, but he allowed his ambition to coax him into a bid of 6-Spades. The opening lead was the K of Hearts.

B won the trick. He saw that he would lose no trump trick, unless all opposing spades lay in one hand. Two leads of spades captured all outstanding spades. It was plain that one of B's diamonds could be discarded upon one of A's clubs, provided the six missing clubs were divided between Y-Z, either 3-3 or 4-2. By sacrificing one club trick the contract might be fulfilled.

B led his Ace and then his losing club, giving one trick to Z. The return lead was trumped by B, and dummy was put in the lead with its 9 of spades. The third lead of clubs was trumped by B. Z showed out of clubs, but dummy held one more than Y, so that a long club could be established in A's hand, to give the declarer the one diamond discard that he needed to fulfill his contract.

Dummy was put in the lead with its K of diamonds, and its fourth club was led, and trumped by B. The declarer led his second diamond, overtook his lead with A's Ace, and led dummy's long card. Upon the good club B discarded his last diamond. He had lost only one trick and his hand contained nothing except winning trumps, enabling him to spread his hand and claim the balance of the tricks.

The next hand was played at 4-Hearts. The opening lead was the Q of spades. Before reading tomorrow's article think how many tricks can be won against any defense left open to A-B.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Knife and Fork

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When using the fork in the left hand, do you rest the fork on the plate on the left side when it is not in use?

1. Yes.

2. When we have finished the course, we rest the knife and fork together on the plate in the center part of the plate, never with the tines of the fork or the tip of the knife-blade on the rim of the plate. For when we do allow the tines of the fork and the knife blade to rest on the rim of the plate, we increase the possibility of having the knife and fork pushed from the plate when the plate is taken from the table, or of having them fall. The handles of both the knife and fork should be turned a bit to the right, for this too makes for their safety.

Flowers for Birthdays

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me if it is correct to send flowers to a male friend on the occasion of his birthday. P. D. M.

There isn't any reason why men shouldn't be sent flowers as a symbol of felicitation and congratulation on their birthday, any more than there is that a woman shouldn't be sent flowers for her birthday. Flowers are a form of beauty and loveliness that practically everyone enjoys, and they certainly add a vivid note to one's birthday. So by all means send flowers if you wish. Dark, red, dusky carnations are favorites of most men, not only for boutonnieres but for room-decoration as well. How about sending a box of these, with one dark red carnation made into a boutonniere? Or perhaps with the box of flowers you might also like to enclose a carton of his favorite cigarets, or a box of his favorite cigars.

Two Wilkinsburg boys, Robert Rush, 5, and Robert Shrut, 4, both of 313 Trenton avenue, dashed into the street in front of their home today and were struck by an auto and slightly injured, according to the police report. Wallace Kirk, 433 Rosedale avenue, driver of the car, picked up the boys and carried them to Columbia Hospital. Kirk was held in $1,000 bail.

'Phone Firms Plan Secretarial Service

COLUMBUS, O., Feb 29.—(AP)—Five Ohio companies applied to the State Utilities Commission to perform "secretarial service" by keeping track of all calls received during a subscriber's absence at 10 cents each.

Athough the applications did not state it, commission members had reports that the telephone girls would chase morpheus as pinch hitters for alarm clocks.

Bank Robbers Use Buzzer for Warning

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(AP)—Installing a buzzer system for lookouts to sound an alarm, yeggmen chiseled their way through the wall of a building last night and robbed 50 safe deposit boxes of the Washington Savings Bank.

Entrance was effected through an adjoining building. The intruders went to work on the safety deposit boxes with acetyline torches.

LISTENING IN

With the Radio Editor

FRANK J. CHESTERMAN, vice president and general manager of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh civic leader, comes before the KDKA microphone at 10:45 tonight to speak on the subject, "A New Englander in Pittsburgh." Mr. Chesterman, one of the leading industrial figures in this district for the last several years, is not new to radio, having been heard before in welfare drives and other philanthropic activities. His address tonight promises to be one of general interest to everyone.

Mr. Chesterman

Two international broadcasts tomorrow mark the celebration of St. David's Day, great Welsh feast. The first, from Cardiff, Wales, brings some of the world's finest music to America. It is on WCAE, starting at 2:20 p. m. From London at 4:20 come the addresses at the famous St. David's Day dinner in the Trocadero Restaurant. WJAS has this feature, Britain's great war-time premier, David Lloyd George, is scheduled to speak, but the illness with which he was stricken recently makes it doubtful if his eloquence will be heard here.

The flight of Walter Winchell's "magic carpet" to Tokio has been definitely canceled. Originally scheduled two weeks ago, it was postponed until tomorrow night. Now engineers report reception conditions do not permit a signal suitable for rebroadcasting. In place of the Japanese music, Vic Meyer's orchestra will be heard from Seattle, Wash., in addition to the Anson Weeks orchestra in San Francisco.

Program Pointers

PIERRE BRUGNON, genial French master of ceremonies, is guest of honor instead of host in WJAS's "Evening in Paris" tonight.

Mabel Jackson, soprano, the Rosamond Johnson Choir and Rollin Smith, famed Negro baritone, pay tribute to Mississippi in the "Parade of the States" on WCAE at 9:30.

Ella Graubart, well-known attorney, discusses laws which still limit rights of married women in Pennsylvania in a new series of Monday afternoon talks starting today on KDKA.

Jimmy and Bobby O'Brien, on KQV tonight, are brothers and veterans of the vaudeville stage.

Richard Crooks, taking Lawrence Tibbett's place on WCAE at 8:30, began his professional career in 1922 when Walter Damrosch selected him to sing with the New York Symphony.

George Burns and Grace Allen, stage and screen favorites, continue to help Guy Lombardo brighten up the airways on WJAS at 10.

M. V. B. Ziegler, president of New Kensington's Chamber of Commerce, is guest speaker in the Westinghouse Parade on KDKA at 6:15.

Question Box

Is that Little Jack Little's real name?

—Gordon Brown, Dormont.

No; it's only a "nom de stage et microphone." His real name is John Leonard and he is a native of England. Some years ago, while playing on one vaudeville circuit, he wanted to switch to another, but his manager warned him he would have to use a different name. And so, being just 5 feet 4 inches tall, John Leonard passed into oblivion and Little Jack Little became famous.

Ted Kaye and Pete Zummo, KQV's Dream Lovers, received a request yesterday from Clairton for a song, "I'll Be Glad When You're Dead, You Rascal, You."

Then they found out it came from an undertaker.

Loew's Penn Singers Star in Nite Club

Fresh from a triumphal engagement at the Folies Bergere in Paris, Steve Freda, guitarist, and Johnny Palace, inimitable singer of popular songs, playing at Loew's Penn Theater this week, are featured on the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club over WCAE tonight at 11.

Also on the program are Lois Miller, singing organist, with a group of request numbers, and Bob Weeden, both of Loew's Penn, together with the Lawson Sisters, harmony team, and Jack Sidler, tenor. Herb McGee, master of ceremonies, officiates.

The Sun-Telegraph Family is on the air over WCAE at 4:45 p. m. The entertainers, all of them children, present a half-hour program of songs, instrumental solos and recitations.

Louis L. Kaufman, the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, relays the latest news as usual at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

WHEN COLLEEN MOORE was married the other day, she cancelled her appearance in the Bath Club scheduled for tomorrow... That's why Ethel Barrymore Colt is taking her place. Bing Crosby will be on the air at 6:30 hereafter, on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings . . . Manhattan Serenaders take his 7:45 spot tonight . . . Winston Churchill is on WJAS next week ...Bruce Barton is said to be radio's highest paid writer ... He gets plenty for those states salutes ...Konrad Bercovici, the writer, has a new real gypsy ensemble which will go on the air soon... Rudy Vallee wears a cap, they say, because it's a more effective disguise than smoked glasses . . . Kathryn Trnavsky, popular WCAE soprano, was forced to cancel her appearance on the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club Saturday because of serious illness.

Miss Moore

Gigli, the Metropolitan Opera star, who appeared recently in the Sunday Circle program, sang three numbers in English. Maybe you heard him. But did you know that he does not read English. He sang each number from a phonetically-written memorandum. For instance, the first three lines of "Take Thou This Rose" read something like this:

"Tak dhou dhis ros,
"Dhis litel tender ros,
"Dhi fairest flaor."

Here's another one for Ripley: Radio sounded a false fire alarm. It happened at Point Pleasant (N. J.) recently when a cipher developed during a WHAM organ recital. That is, a key became stuck and one tone sounded continuously. It was so much like the town's fire siren that all the boys of the fire department turned out.

TEACHER TACKLES COUGH

Doesn't Miss a Day of School

"Right before exams I caught a cough. I just hated to stay home and give my class to a substitute. Another teacher recommended Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. When I got home I started to tackle my cough with the syrup. In just a few minutes and I was breathing easier, my throat felt better, I was coughing less. That very night I got well. Went back to school next day." Mrs. L. Stone, 915 West End Avenue, New York.

Eight girls from Pittsburgh and Sewickley were guests at the junior prom of the Yale class of 1933 at Woolsey Hall, New Haven, Friday night. Six hundred couples were at the dance, the climax of the annual Yale social week. Because of the depression, expensive features were eliminated so that there'll be a margin left for student relief.

The girls attending from here were Betty Kennedy, Rita Borntraeger, Katharine Frazer and Virginia Doyle, all debs of the season just past. Marjorie Maltbie, Elizabeth Curtis, Jane Harper and Elizabeth Fisher.

Sarah Helen Chappell Engaged to V. E. Arens

Mr. and Mrs. John Chappell, of Gladstone road, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sarah Helen Chappell, to Verne Edward Arens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand C. Arens, of Bartlett street. The announcement was made at a bridge luncheon on Saturday, in the Hotel Schenley.

Mr. Arens is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, and is a member of Kappa Sigma. Alpha Kappa Psi and Omicron Delta Kappa.

Geraldine Farrar, 50, Celebrates on Farm

Only her father, Sidney Farrar, and a few very close friends gathered for the simple party and the slicing of the big birthday cake. At her home it was described as a "delightful" day. Miss Farrar's estate is several miles from that of her father.

Notables to Address Seventh Ward Club

The Seventh Ward Community Club will celebrate its recent membership and affiliation with the Allied Boards of Trade with a rally at the Liberty School, Ellsworth avenue, Thursday evening. Speakers will be the Rev. James R. Cox, of Old St. Patricks Church; Senator James J. Coyne and Judge Thomas M. Marshall. President James Porter and Arch Loney, publicity secretary, will preside.

Illustrated Talk on Jungle Africa To Start Month of Varied Interesting Affairs

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Lectures, luncheons and the customary music and teas, with new interest angles, present an interesting outlook for Woman's City Club members during March. To start the ball rolling, the program committee has scheduled an illustrated lecture on "Jungle Africa," by Laura C. Boulton, for Saturday afternoon. Then for the evening of the eleventh the evening entertainment committee has arranged another illustrated lecture, this one by Maj. James C. Sawders, a former marine, who will talk on "Wind-Jamming in the Indies."

Mlle. Gaby Gardescu will assist in the conversation at the two French luncheons, which are dated for the twelfth and the twenty-sixth.

The twilight musicale, on the thirteenth, is under the direction of Mrs. Frank Martin Fisher and will be a two-piano program by Miss Elizabeth Voegtley and Joseph Esposito. Something unusual, plans for which are not yet complete, is in store for those who attend the library committee's evening party on the eighteenth, which Miss Lucetta Burns and Mrs. George Seibel are arranging.

Tuesday Musical

The drama tea for the month is set for the twenty-second and will have Ray E. Hurd, Pittsburgh playwright, as the attraction. The month's activities will close on the twenty-sixth with the last in the series of children's matinees at the Nixon Theater when Frances Hodgson Burnett's lovely story of "The Secret Garden" will be played by the Children's Theater Company.

* * *

Dr. Florence M. Teagarden, of the University of Pittsburgh, will address the Woman's Club of Carnegie Institute of Technology on Wednesday, taking "Psychology" as her subject.

* * *

The Rosedale Community Club will have the Pitt debating team at its meeting tomorrow afternoon in the All Saints parish house.

* * *

Mrs. H. D. Stark is taking luncheon reservations for the annual southwestern district meeting of the State Federation, which is set for March 16 in the Twentieth Century Club.

League Discusses Bill To Aid Overseas Women

Discussion of the bill asking government care for all women taken overseas with the army during the World War was the most important bit of business taken up by the Women's Overseas Service League at the Third Corps area meeting Saturday and Sunday. Plans for the coming national convention to be held in Los Angeles during the summer were made.

Delegates were present from Washington, D. C., and Washington, Pa., New Castle, Ellwood City, East Liverpool, Derry, McDonald and Slippery Rock. At a luncheon in Mrs. Ralph W. Harbison's home on Saturday, Miss Faustine Dennis, of Washington, third vice president of the national organization, shared honors with Mrs. William Watson Smith and Mrs. James R. Macfarlane. Miss Frances Shirley was hostess at dinner and later the women visited the Industrial Home for Crippled Children.

Sunday was spent in sightseeing with tea at the Veterans' Hospital and supper with Miss Yolande Marchand, North Dallas avenue.

March's events on the Tuesday Musical Club calendar include the opera program tomorrow in the Twentieth Century Club, the Lenten program in the Shadyside United Presbyterian Church on the fifteenth and the composers' program on the twenty-ninth. After tomorrow's program the Twentieth Century Club will serve tea for a very small fee.

Piano Program

The Lenten program this year will take place in the afternoon, contrary to custom, and the recital will be given by a double quartet, with Elsie Breese Mitchell and Gertrude G. Hespenheide, soloists; Grace McMillan, pianist; Grace Adele Hall, organist, and Vera La Quay Shobert, violist.

One of the pleasant features for the composers' recital will be the return of Henrietta Meyer Bodycombe from Detroit to give some of her early "American Miniatures for Piano." Janet Spaugh has written an orchestral composition this year and it will be played by the Fillion Orchestra.

"Cinderella" and "Little Black Sambo" are to be presented by the Puppets of the Wilkinsburg Junior Women's Club under auspices of the Pittsburgh Alumnae Association of Kappa Kappa Gamma Friday evening at the Frick Training School. A prelude on the history of puppetry will be given by Elizabeth Hamilton.

Cost of Parties Scored at Lehigh

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Estimating $15,000 as the cost of one week-end house party, the Brown and White, student publication of Lehigh University, urges abolition of social affairs to which girls from out of town are invited.

Amherst and Williams already have taken the "common sense" attitude and cancelled all spring promenades, the editor says. "Why not we?"

COAT-FROCK IMPORTANT MODEL IN SPRING MODE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 29.—When something that looks like a coat isn't really a coat and when a dress isn't really a dress, there's only one answer to the puzzle; that is, of course, the coat-dress. And this spring is to see the coat-frock tremendously important, since every house has shown it and reports that it has been ordered by private and professional buyers. Most women like it and they will like the new versions even better. Before the frock aspect was stressed, now it is the coat that has vastly influenced the new coat frocks. It is a garment that gives a very trim lithe look to the figure and for that reason alone it should be popular. Lots of color is being used here for the new spring clothes and one sees quantities of yellow, all shades of blue, especially bright and medium, some green with the pale shades favored and lots of beige. Blue and yellow, a favorite alliance, has also been noted.

* * *

MOLYNEUX IS SHOWING several coat dresses and reports that this will prove to be an important feature of the general spring wardrobe everywhere. The lady emerging from the airplane appears to be wearing a smart traveling coat, but the description informs us that it is in reality Molyneux's latest word in the coat-frock world. The material is pale green homespun, and the ball buttons are of matching green galalith. The large flattering collar is of natural lynx. The open flare just above the buttoned cuff is a new detail for this type of garment.

The Lux Way to save the ELASTICITY that makes stockings wear and fit

Wash this 2-minute way:

1. One teaspoon of Lux for each pair.
2. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze suds through stockings, rinse well.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens silk threads, fades colors. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Why blame stockings when YOU may be at fault?

Are you washing away the ELASTICITY that makes stockings wear?

"ANOTHER PAIR GONE!"—but don't blame the stockings. Do you know YOU may have caused those costly runs?

But if you wash away the elasticity, the lifeless threads, instead of giving, break. The slightest little strain—then a wretched run!

With Lux, you preserve this precious elasticity. That is why this easy way of washing makes even your sheerest, loveliest stockings wear and WEAR.

LUX saves stocking E-L-A-S-T-I-C-I-T-Y

Not One Piece Of Kaufmann Furniture Costs A Single Penny More In March Than It Did In February!

DESPITE the fact that it is customary for furniture stores to mark up all unsold goods, after February, Kaufmann's has not found it advisable to do this. We feel that the customer who finds it more convenient to make her purchases in March should receive the same price advantage as in February, on any merchandise remaining unsold. It is true that in February we bring in larger quantities of specially priced goods — but with the largest Furniture business in any department store in this section of the country, we have a continuous stream of special purchases throughout the year. Furthermore, it is our policy that our entire line of furniture shall be at all times at the lowest-in-the-city prices.

LEGION UNEMPLOYMENT DRIVE FINDS 225 JOBS

HOUSE TO HOUSE CANVASS OPENS IN COUNTY

Headquarters Opened in Hotel; Final Details Nearing Completion

House-to-house canvassers seeking odd jobs for unemployed men and women today launched the local campaign of the Allegheny County American Legion in conjunction with the national drive to find work for 1,000,000 persons.

Final details and campaign plans will be completed tomorrow night at the monthly county meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Harry S. Hall, personal representative of National Commander Henry L. Stevens, Jr., will speak at the meeting.

Headquarters were opened today in the William Penn Hotel with Howard F. Croushore in charge. House owners seeking to have painting, cleaning and odd jobs done can obtain workers by telephoning direct to headquarters, Atlantic 6460. County Commander John J. Deller is scheduled to speak before many posts during the week in helping to direct the campaign.

The first day of the Sewickley Valley Advisory Council's job relief campaign resulted in 225 positions, full and part time, being obtained, Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan, chairman of the drive, announced last night.

HARRIS BACKED BY LABOR

Senator Frank J. Harris, candidate for re-election in the Forty-fifth district, has been indorsed by the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor in a letter which says Harris' record of service for labor goes far beyond activity in behalf of unionized employes.

The letter is signed by John A. Phillips, president, and James E. Kelley, secretary, and expresses the "utmost pleasure and satisfaction" that the Senator again is a candidate. It read:

"This affords us the opportunity formally to express to you our most sincere appreciation of the invaluable services rendered by you in that office (the Senate) to the great mass of citizenry of our commonwealth.

"Categorically, your record on every piece of legislation involving human considerations stands 100 per cent."

OFFICIAL LAUDS AIRPORT HERE

The new County Airport is one of the major airport projects in the country in the opinion of Col. Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of the Department of Commerce, in charge of aeronautics, on a visit here today with Walter F. Parkin, chief of the inspection service of the Department of Commerce. Col. Young said:

"When the topography of the Pittsburgh district is taken into consideration and the difficulty of laying out a field, such an airport as you have here is a wonderful development."

Col. Young planned to visit County Commissioner C. M. Barr, an old friened, during his brief stay. Parkin also visited friends in addition to looking after matters of an official nature. He was reared in Aspinwall.

WELSH ARRANGE ST. DAVID FETE

Welsh residents of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania will join in their annual St. David's Day banquet Saturday evening in Kaufmann's dining room, under auspices of the American Gorsedd and Women's Welsh clubs. Fred W. Jones is general chairman.

He was fined $10 with the alternative of 10 days in jail by Magistrate T. D. Jones.

Asks $60,000 For Loss of Wife's Love

MRS. MABEL JUNGE

Steward of Towboat Sues Tube City Business Man

During his absence on trips of the towboat Donora, of which he was steward, Harry E. Junge, of 255 Meyran avenue, charged that his wife, Mabel Junge, was entertained by Reuel Smith, retired McKeesport business man, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court today by Attorney George Little. Junge asked $60,000 damages from Smith for alienation of his wife's affections.

Junge spent but 24 hours a week at home and during his absence, he said, Smith carressed Mrs. Junge in the presence of others.

PROTEST NEW BROWN BRIDGE

The City Planning Commission today sent a letter to Council protesting the proposed erection of a new bridge taking the place of Brown's Bridge between Pittsburgh and Homestead, on the ground that the city's part of the cost could be better expended in other projects.

The present span, the Commission, holds is adequate and there is no pressing need for replacement. The county would bear the expense of the span, the city to take care of all street connections on the Pittsburgh end. Little work for the unemployed would result from the project the commission asserts. Plans for the bridge are nearing completion.

Man Killed, 12 Hurt by Autos in District

FRIENDLY INN, REFUSED AID, WILL CLOSE

Council Tables Request For $5,000; Many Jobless To Be Forced to Streets

Failure of Council to grant financial help to the Friendly Inn, Forbes street, a hotel for poor and jobless men, will force closing of the establishment and the eventual care of some of the men at Mayview, it was learned today.

Managers of the establishment have informed officials of the city Department of Welfare they have no funds to care for the needy who have found a haven during the past several months. Unless funds are appropriated the Inn will be forced to close. Many jobless men there will be forced to the streets.

PLIGHT OF JOBLESS

The only alternative, Department of Welfare representatives said, will be to allocate the men to the Improvement of the Poor Home, the Helping Hand, or Mayview. Accomodations for less than 100 are available at Mayview, according to Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director.

Men sent there would have to be cared for in an old, abandoned barn near the Kline infirmary, Mrs. Rauh told Council.

A survey conducted by Mrs. Rauh several days ago disclosed that an appropriation of $5,000 would assure adequate housing and food for nearly 500 men at the Friendly Inn. Adequate facilities would assure the destitute proper care. Aside from the present quota at the Inn, an overflow of nearly 300 at the Helping Hand could be cared for. Council has refused Mrs. Rauh's request.

FUND REQUEST TABLED

President John S. Herron, of Council, informed Mrs. Rauh the city had no money to spend on this phase of relief at the present time. Her request was tabled for action "sometime in the future."

The Friendly Inn was used as a hotel by poor workingmen who were privileged to reside there for a nominal sum each week. When the present situation became acute, many destitute and jobless persons were permitted to live there without cost.

It is able to care for men at a cheaper rate than the Helping Hand, its backers declare.

BURGLARS TAKE $3,000 GEMS

Jewelry valued at nearly $3,000 was stolen from the residence of Mrs. Z. Moglanski, 5504 Avondale place, she reported to police early today. Burglars entered through the front door which they opened with a key, she reported.

Mrs. Hilda Boupier, of 2530 Loiusa street, reported her home was entered and jewelry, valued at $150 and $83 cash was stolen, according to a police report.

Forcing entrance to the residence of Mrs. George Jayne, 323 South Fairmont avenue, robbers stole jewelry valued at $150, police reported.

GAS KILLS MAN IN BABY'S CRIB

The body of Fred Tharp was found yesterday in his Seavy road, Shaler Township, home, lying across a crib which he had purchased for his week-old baby. Two brothers, investigating his absence from his wife's bedside in the West Penn Hospital, discovered his body.

Tharp was a victim of carbon monoxide fumes from a stove without a flue, according to a coroner's report. The brothers, Walter and Alva Tharp, forced their way into the house.

Tharp visited his wife in the hospital last Sunday. A baby was born the following day, and Mrs. Tharp became worried when her husband failed to visit her. She sent the brothers to investigate.

Braddock Woman Badly Hurt in Crash

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Anna Pawlowski, 56, of Braddock, Pa., was critically injured near here yesterday when an automobile in which she was a passenger upset after a rear tire blew out. Her neck was broken and her skull probably fractured. William Killie, the driver, and William Pawlowski, both of Braddock, were uninjured.

Police Radio Huge Success; Nabs Crooners

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

New York police force is now equipped with radio. Its a success.

The very first day the coppers grabbed six burglars and three crooners.

It works great in the winter time. But how about next summer when there's two out, three on and Babe Ruth at the bat?

LEAP YEAR DAY STORK BUSY

Pity the leapyear babies, born today, and, according to the almanac, entitled to have a birthday cake and candles only once every four years.

There were many of them, according to hospital reports, the boys predominating by two to one, and the stork reported ready to increase the number materially between now and midnight.

Among 26 born today in the various hospitals were twin sons to Mrs. Eleanor Farkas, 18, rear 145 Freeland street. Weighing six pounds each, both the twins and the mother were reported doing well in the Allegheny General Hospital.

Mrs. Mark Bach, of R. D. 1, McKeesport, gave birth to a seven-pound girl in Braddock General Hospital and in Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, a nine-pound baby girl was born to Mrs. Celia Bergad, of Springdale. To Mrs. Margaret Elias, 23, of 3605 Parkview street, a girl was born in Mercy Hospital.

Other hospital reports were: Homeopathic, 5; Homestead, 1; Mercy, 1; Montefiore, 2; Pittsburgh, 1; St. Francis, 1; St. John's, 1; West Penn 3; Magee, 7.

Mrs. Gandhi Freed, Terms Jail 'Happy'

AHMEDABAD, India, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—The wife of Mahatma Gandhi, who was released yesterday from imprisonment in the government's campaign against civil disobedience, today described her experiences in jail as "very happy."

She said she soon would visit her husband in Yeroda jail.

Boy at Play Hurt By Hit-Run Driver

A hit-and-run driver injured John Conancico, 9, as he was playing in front of his home, 53 Orphan street, last night. The boy was removed to the Belvedere Hospital, where he was reported suffering from a fractured leg.

TRIPLE CRASH ON IMPERIAL ROAD FATAL

Driver Run Down While Re-routing Cars Following Collision; Traffic Toll High

One dead and more than a dozen injured was the toll of automobile accidents reported in the Pittsburgh district over the week-end.

A crash near Imperial involving three automobiles resulted in the death of Roy C. Meyers, 51, of 71 Ruth street, and the injury of six others.

Others injured in the accident were Meyers' wife, Mrs. Eva Meyers; Mrs. E. M. Stauffer and Mrs. Ida E. Terry, of Pittsburgh, Fornes and Robert Fetter and an unidentified girl, a passenger in Fornes' car.

WOMAN VICTIM

Mrs. Ruth Schieck, 42, of 3709 Dawson street, was injured when she was struck by an automobile driven by Roy Hockenberry, of Renton, at Penn and Highland avenues.

Tony Gico, 53, of 516 Armond way, was struck by an automobile driven by Frank Snyder, 34, of Unity, at Penn and Shady avenues, police reported.

Ted Coup, 29, of 1710 Lincoln avenue, was struck by an automobile driven by Fred Thompson, of 1302 Collier street, at Lincoln and Frankstown avenues, police reported.

Stogan Sabovich, 46, of 2511 Harkins way, was injured when he was struck at Carson and South Twenty-seventh streets, by a motorcycle operated by H. Helpern, of 2328 Wellington street.

C. W. Weibel, 30, of 212 Carver street, was injured when his car collided with another machine in Lambert street, near Hamilton avenue, police reported.

BOULEVARD CRASH

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Sissman, of 5870 Phillips avenue, were injured Saturday night when their automobile figured in a five-way collision in the Boluevard of the Allies, near Lawn street, police reported.

Miss Ruth Russell, 27, of South Aiken avenue, was injured when the automobile in which she was riding crashed into a pole in Saw Mill Run boulevard, according to a police report.

Ruth White, 22, of 1828 West Liberty avenue, and Edward Murphy, 20, of 7306 Florence street, Swissvale, were injured when the car in which they were riding crashed on Brown's Bridge, according to a police report.

MRS. MARY VOLLMER

WOMAN IN RACE FOR ASSEMBLY

Voters of the Twelfth Legislative District got their first Leap Year "proposal" today.

It came from Mrs. Mary Vollmer, of Overbrook, who aspires to represent the citizens of her district in the Legislature.

The first woman candidate's platform includes pensions for mothers; repeal of the Snyder act, state bonus for World War veterans; public utility rate reduction; repeal of the blue laws, and unemployment relief.

Mrs. Vollmer, who resides at 2071 Dartmore avenue, is a graduate of Perry School, North Side, Allegheny High School and Carnegie Institute of Technology.

4 THUGS SOUGHT IN HOLDUP

Police today are searching for four thugs who, early yesterday, robbed and beat Fred Martin, of 6821 Frankstown avenue at Broad and Station streets, according to a report. He was robbed of $15. Police removed him to Pittsburgh Hospital, where he was treated for head and face injuries.

A. Scarupski, of 3060 Brereton street, was robbed of $7 by three Negroes who held him up in Smallman street, near Twenty-ninth street, according to a police report.

Dr. Homer J. Stewart was held up in his office, 2421 Carson street, and robbed of $58, police reported.

Jewelry and cash was reported stolen by thieves who ransacked Polish Falcons' Association Hall, 1001 Bingham street, early yesterday.

Anthony Minor, 46, Negro, of 2912 Carson street, was held for court yesterday in South Side Police Court after Mamie Hilt, 55, of 1381½ South Twenty-first street, testified he seized her purse while she was walking in Twenty-fourth street, Saturday night.

VOTE PACT PUTS STADTFELD ON SLATE

Agreement With Phila. Group Giving County Single Place Awaits Ratification Here

By MARK SHIELDS

Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, of the Superior Court, will be slated for nomination in the April primaries if a tentative agreement reached yesterday in Philadelphia between Philadelphia leaders, three spokesmen for Allegheny County Republicans and State Chairman Edward Martin is ratified at a further meeting to be held this week.

County Chairman William D. Mansfield, E. R. Crawford, McKeesport industrialist, and Walter A. Bonitz, manufacturer, are understood to have asked at yesterday's meeting only for support of Stadtfeld. Previous proposals that that Representative James H. McClure rather than Senator Frank Baldwin, of Potter County, be slated for auditor general are understood to have been little discussed. The place of Baldwin on the slate is assured.

STAKE ALL ON JUDGE

The Allegheny group, not much concerned about the remainder of the ticket, staked everything on the choice of Stadtfeld. It is understood that even the proposition to put Crawford on the slate as delegates-at-large to the Republican national convention was not pressed. He was offered a place some time ago by Martin, but declined so long as Stadtfeld was ignored.

At the conclusion of yesterday's conference the Pittsburghers asked time to discuss a decision among themselves. The Philadelphians were agreeable, wishing to learn the reaction of other Republicans here to the tentative agreement. The decision will be reached this week, and the final complexion of the slate will be announced.

Slating of Judge Stadtfeld would mean the dropping of Judge William M. Parker, of Venango County, named to the Superior Court bench last week by Gov. Pinchot. It had been reported that the Philadelphians had agreed to support Parker in return for Pinchot's appointment of Judge William B. Linn, of Philadelphia, to the Supreme Court. Such an agreement, however, never was ratified, and the Governor himself has denied that it was a part of the dual appointment.

OPPOSED BY M'GOVERN

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern is understood to be opposed to a slate which gives Allegheny County only Judge Stadtfeld, and will refuse to back the organization selections for delegates to the national convention. The acquiescence of McGovern, was not, however, considered necessary to Philadelphia backing for the Pittsburgh judge, yesterday's conference having been composed only of regulars who had little hope of attracting any independent support.

The organization men are taking the position that a fight on the slate from Independent sources would not be a serious threat this year, no matter how active Gov. Pinchot becomes in opposition. McGovern would follow the Pinchot lead.

Yesterday's conference represented all sections of organized politics in the state.

Speaking for the state organization were Martin, Lieut. Gov. Edward Shannon, State Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County; State Senator Harry R. Scott, of Center County, and A. Boyd Hamilton, Secretary of the Senate.

Daughter, Mother Die Within 5 Hour

PAIR ESCAPES PURSUING POLICE

Man Preparing to Close Confectionery Robbed of Own Money, Stamp Funds

Two gunmen held up the postmaster and postoffice of Harwick at midnight and escaped with $85, according to a police report.

The holdup occurred while Postmaster John Stifanovich was preparing to close the storeroom that serves as a postoffice and confectionery.

Guns were leveled at the postmaster as he turned his back to get a package of cigarets for one of two men who had entered the store.

After rifling Stifanovich's pockets, the thieves took about $85 from the cash drawer. Some of the money belonged to the government, Stifanovich reported.

Springdale police, augmented by Stifanovich, patrolled the road, but the suspects escaped along the railroad tracks. It is believed

'KIDNAPED' GIRL HELD FOR QUIZ

Mary Terensko, 18, of Court Terrace, Braddock, sought by police since Thursday when she was reported kidnaped by four youths, who escaped in a hail of bullets after injuring a policeman, was held today by Braddock police for investigation.

The girl, who said she had been visiting a girl friend, was arrested when she returned home last night. Police said she told them she met the youths in Braddock and went for a ride Thursday night.

She had an argument, she said, and they returned to Braddock where they encountered Patrolman Charles Holleran. He ordered the driver to drive to the Braddock Police Station.

Speeding up, the autoists eluded the officer at Talbot avenue and Thirteenth street when the latter's motorcycle skidded.

RECTOR TALKS HERE ON FOOD

The day of the old restaurant, where food, not the cover charge, was the most important part of the menu, will return with light wines and beer, says George Rector, whose family name has been famous in epicurean circles for a century.

Rector, here for a series of food lectures, was recovering from a throat irritation. He greeted his friend, Flo Ziegfeld, with an apology. Ziegfeld, startled, replied in a scarcely audible whisper:

Rector will give practical talks and demonstrations today, tomorrow and Wednesday in the Joseph Horne Company auditorium. Here under the auspices of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company for whom he is consultant and director of cuisine, he will be assisted by his chef, Rene Chaubeau. Copies of the recipes will be distributed to the audience for home use.

He will be heard in radio broadcasts during his visit here in addition to the regular programs on the national hookup.

JACOB SHULGOLD

SHULGOLD RUNS FOR ASSEMBLY

Attorney Jacob Shulgold, of 6334 Forward avenue, Fourteenth Ward, World War veteran, has announced his candidacy in the Republican primary for membership in the General Assembly from the Fifth District, comprising the Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth wards.

He advocates an inquiry into the public utility question with the objective of obtaining service at a reasonable cost to the patron and allowing the companies a fair return.

Shulgold's platform pledges him to work for legislation for relief for the needy; reforms in the state banking code that will protect depositors from loss, and requiring hospitals receiving state appropriations to use empty beds for hospitalization for the poor.

He declared he would work for a state bonus for service men and payment in full of the federal bonus; also compulsory automobile insurance.

Shulgold was born in Pittsburgh and educated in the public schools and University of Pittsburgh. He served 13 months in France in the 80th Division, attaining the rank of lieutenant. Brown University Chancellor Dies

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Dr. Arthur Buffum Chace, 87, chancellor of Brown University since 1907 and a leading textile manufacturer of Rhode Island, died yesterday at Jane Brown Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Chace was treasurer and active head of the Valley Falls Company, textile manufacturers, from 1869 until 1929, when the concern was absorbed by the Berkshire Fine Spinning Associates. He was director of a half score Rhode Island corporations, including banks and insurance companies.

RABBIT TRADE PROMOTERS DETAINED

Two Face False Pretense Charges; Sure Profits Promised, Bureau Says

Two men were held over for five days in Central Police Court today, charged with obtaining money under false pretense, in connection with a campaign by the Better Business Bureau of Pittsburgh against rabbit companies offering to sell breeding animals with a guarantee of "sure profits." The accused men are L. D. Mehaffey, of 1501 Investment Building, and J. C. Steinman of Sheraden, who, police said, represented themselves as connected with the Sunnyfield Packing Company of Pittsburgh, which the bureau declares to be a mythical concern.

Both were charged with obtaining money under false pretense from Charles B. Walters of Brookville, Pa.; William F. McKee of Big Run, Pa., and James Robinson of Falls Creek, Pa.

Informations filed by the three charged Mehaffey and Steinman persuaded them to sign contracts and pay money for rabbits on the promise to buy back a large part of the product at profitable prices. The information declared the Sunnyfield Packing Company has not been registered to do business in the state.

Mehaffey was arrested by City Detectives William M. Sullivan and Charles Waizenhofer on a suspicious person charge, pending the arrival of informations from Brookville. Steinman was arrested in DuBois, accused of passing two no-account checks on North Side restaurant owners. Detective Sullivan testified today that Robinson had pawned his furniture to raise $150 to pay for six rabbits. The detectives said they would check on possible activities of the suspects in the Pittsburgh district.

KOREAN'S RITES ARRANGED HERE

E. Whan Kang, the Korean student of Western Theological Seminary, who would have been a Presbyterian minister next June, had he lived, will be buried tomorrow.

He died Saturday in Presbyterian Hospital following an emergency operation for appendicitis. His body will lie in state in the seminary chapel. Following services, the interment will be in Uniondale Cemetery.

The young man was a native of Northern Korea, and was the son of the minister of the Presbyterian Church, of Korea. He graduated from the University of Tokio, and he was preparing to devote himself to teaching in his native land.

SWEET VOICE TEST OPENS TONIGHT

WCAE Stars to Greet Entrants in Audition Held at Alvin Theater

Surrounded and encouraged by an army of popular radio stars from WCAE, the hundreds of girls who have entered the Sun-Telegraph WCAE test to select the "girl with the sweetest voice," will begin auditions at the Alvin Theater tonight. Arrangements have been completed for a big stage show, the auditions to take place before the program and between the numbers.

The opening night has been set aside for girls living in the South Hills area and they have all been notified by mail to appear at the Alvin Theater at 7:30 o'clock. While the auditions will be public, the candidates, when speaking, will not be in view of the audience. They will speak from printed copy, in booths equipped with radio amplifiers. The judges will sit in the audience.

Five girls will be selected each night to appear in the final.

This will be the first time that all of the stars of WCAE have appeared in person on one program. There will be approximately 25 artists including Paul Gannon, tenor; Charlotte Shallenberger and Virginia Harmon, sopranos; Ford Miller, basso and master of ceremonies; Dave Olson, the "Seth Parker" of Pittsburgh, Riggs and Moke, the "crazy pair," Helene Ward, blues singer; Katherine Rickert, violinist, and others, including the entire concert orchestra of WCAE.

Tomorrow night has been set aside for the East End girls. Girls in this unique test are urged not to be nervous, but simply to talk in an easy, friendly way as they would to their mothers or sisters.

Dr. Depuy Funeral Set for Tomorrow

Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Dr. Leopold Depuy, 75, one of the organizers of the National Odontological Society, who died Saturday at his home, 6828 Thomas boulevard, Homewood. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Julia Pemar Depuy; a son, Col. L. W. Depuy; two daughters, Mrs. Nancy N. Henderson and Mrs. Lottie A. Ayers, and two sisters, Miss Emma and Miss Charlotte Depuy, all of Pittsburgh, and a brother, Dr. Hiram Depuy, of Decoma, Wash.

EDUCATOR SEES GREAT PERIL IN BOYCOTT

Urges U. S. Delegates Be Present at League Parley On Japan-China Conflict

Economic boycott of Japan would be the most dangerous step any nation could take now, Dr. Ben Cherrington, director of the Foundation for the Advancement of Social Sciences, of the University of Denver, said in Pittsburgh today. He is here to address students of the University of Pittsburgh at noon.

Dr. Cherrington arrived in New York Saturday from Geneva, where he acted as an unofficial observer at the Geneva conference.

The United States' greatest contribution to world peace would be instruction of its official delegates at the Geneva disarmament conference to keep their seats at the council table when the parley temporarily recesses Thursday, and the League of Nations convenes to consider the Sino-Japanese question, he declared. He said:

"By their presence at the conference, even though they did not permit their presence to be considered official, the United States delegates would facilitate the conference of the other nations on the Sino-Japanese conflict, and world society could present a united front to the aggressor. The present Far Eastern conflict is a lesson for the world in what might happen anywhere if armaments, particularly those necessary to wage aggressive warfare, are not reduced."

Previous to the Geneva conference Dr. Cherrington spent a month visiting the foreign offices in London, Berlin, Paris and Moscow.

Say "GOOD BYE" to

Sour Stomach, Acid Indigestion Colds, Headaches, and Other Common Ailments

The New "Alkaline Way"

ALKA-SELTZER

These remarkable Effervescent Tablets make a sparkling alkaline drink that gives you two-fold relief. First—it relieves the pain and discomfort and—Second, it corrects excess acidity, the common cause of most of your everyday ills. Find out about this new and better way—this safe, harmless way to say "Good-Bye" to most of your everyday aches and pains.

ALKA-SELTZER Tablets Make a Pleasant, Sparkling Anti-Acid Drink

Gives Amazing Relief

When you suffer with Headaches and Colds—Sour Stomach and Indigestion—Rheumatism and Neuralgia—when you feel tired-out, run-down, dull and depressed—the chances are that too much acid in your system is the real cause of the trouble. Scientists tell us that to keep healthy and vigorous our bodies must be slightly more alkaline than acid. Too much rich food, over-eating, overwork or over-indulgence usually produces an excess acid condition in your body. Then your resistance goes down—vitality is lowered and you become a victim of stomach disorders, headaches, colds and the many other everyday ills so common to us all. (2)

Now science has developed a remarkable Effervescent Alkaline Tablet that quickly corrects this excess acid condition. It's called ALKA-SELTZER, because it makes a sparkling alkaline drink that first relieves the pain of everyday ailments and then corrects the cause (excess acid). There is nothing on the market like ALKA-SELTZER. It is a scientific product—harmless to take. There is nothing equal to it for giving prompt and effective relief for most of your common ailments.

An ALKA-SELTZER Tablet in a glass of water makes a sparkling, effervescent drink. It relieves pain—it corrects excess acid—it sweetens the stomach and it soon makes you feel your normal healthy self again. Don't fail to try ALKA-SELTZER if you want to experience the most welcome relief you have ever had for most of your everyday aches and pains.

'DRY' SENATOR FORECAST HERE

The Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League is "very much encouraged" over the prospect of electing a dry senator from Pennsylvania, the Rev. Homer W. Tope, superintendent of the league, said in an address yesterday in the Emanuel Baptist Church, North Side.

Dr. Tope assured his listeners his organization was backing Hoover as the next President "as long as he stands with us." He was confident at least 17 of the 34 congressmen from Pennsylvania would be dry. He charged:

"The wet referendum advocated by some senators and congressmen is a device to debauch public opinion. A referendum, unless first ordained by a federal constitution, is without legal and political responsibility."

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Two men were probably fatally hurt and 14 other men and women were injured in a head-on crash of two interurban cars at Bellevue siding near here. Terry Bruce, motorman of one car, and John Haines were probably fatally injured. John Dolan, motorman of the other car, escaped by leaping.

Youths Clip Hair To Avert Proposals

ASHLAND, Wis., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Stand back, women. There's a club of young men in this town just organized for the purpose of making its members unattractive so they won't be bothered with leap year proposals.

They call it the "Buzzards." They had their heads clipped bald, figuring this would serve the purpose.

Fox Film Executive Leaves Sanitarium

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 29.—(Universal.)—Completely recovered from a nervous breakdown, Winfield Sheehan, on leave as president and general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, has been discharged from a sanitarium here. Sheehan planned to go to Hollywood to visit a brother and then depart for Florida to rest for a few weeks at Palm Beach.

3 Children Break Through Ice, Drown

HONESDALE, Pa., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Three mothers today were grieving over the loss of three children who fell through thin ice and drowned over the week-end. Cecelia Ackley, 7, and Lucille Litts, 10, drowned near a bridge pier at Tanners Falls, and Andrew Sverduk, while sliding on a pond near Clemo, broke through and drowned.

Woman Hurt Saving Valuables in Fire

Mrs. Hazel Short, 32, North Side, is recovering from face burns sustained when she attempted to carry some of her possessions from her burning home, 418 Pressley street, yesterday afternoon. Flames from a match she had stepped on ignited a silk bedspread, police reported. Firemen confined the blaze to one room. Damage was estimated at $500.

Diplomat on Plane Missing on Sea Hop

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—An airmail passenger plane of the Buenos Aires-Natal line, carrying the French Charge d'Affaires Louis Boucheix, of the La Paz legation, was missing today and fear was expressed it might have fallen into the sea between Montevideo and Pelotas, Brazil.

It carried also two pilots and a radio operator.

Modernists Attack Renewed by Pastor

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—The Rev. H. McAllister Griffiths, renewing his attack on modernists in the Presbyterian Church yesterday, drew a parallel between "modernism and political Bolshevism."

The minister repeated his demands of last Sunday for resignation of 11 modernist ministers of Philadelphia whom he said were "unhonorable and disloyal to Christ."

'Hot-Cha,' Near Record, To Begin New Week Here Tonight

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

With Lupe Velez sure to appear before the week is very far advanced—maybe Tuesday, or perhaps not until Wednesday, "Hot-Cha," the new Florenz Ziegfeld musical sensation, will open its second and final week in the Nixon tonight. It has just sent into theatrical history one of the biggest weeks, in point of attendance and box-office receipts, that is on record anywhere except the office of the Nixon. The first week of "Hot Cha" is just about equal to that of the first week of the Follies in the same theater last summer, a mark that would be next to impossible to exceed except by a dollar or two.

Mr. Ziegfeld

It remains to be seen whether the two weeks combined can equal the high mark of the Follies for two weeks. That production "packed 'em in" at every performance but the sale of seats so far for "Hot-Cha" indicates another attempt to better the records that have been framed in the boxoffice all of them held by previous Ziegfeld productions.

NEVER DISAPPOINTS

The demand for seats for the second week is easily explainable. Ziegfeld never has disappointed, but always has supplied the unusual in entertainment. In connection with "Hot-Cha" there is popularity of the cast to be considered, too, several of its members having achieved renown on the screen, principal among them being Bert Lahr, who became known to more movie fans in one picture than the number of all who ever saw him on the stage.

Then there is Buddy Rogers. Who doesn't know Buddy? From tonight on Buddy will have to work harder in "Hot-Cha." It probably is a mistake to say "have to" for it is quite likely he wants to. Since last week, the opening of the new Brown-Henderson-Hellinger musical comedy has been revised, and, beginning tonight, it will have its first public presentation. It will give Mr. Rogers a chance to show what he can do with musical instruments, and Buddy can handle quite a number of them most expertly.

AND GLORIFIED GIRLS

Besides these there are Marjorie White, June MacCloy, June Knight, Lynn Overman, Robert Gleckler, Revva Reyes, Tito Coral, the De Marcos, Velez and Yolanda and a whole stageful of girls bearing the Ziegfeld trademark—Glorified.

Popular interest still centers in the appearance of the peppy Lupe Velez, portrayer of zippy girls of the Latin type on the screen. Lupe has that thing called "personality" and her room telephone has been kept so busy by movie fans that it finally became necessary to disconnect it or she never would have been able to get herself "up in her lines" for her appearance on the stage of the Nixon.

CAUSE OF A LAUGH

"Say, Mr. Ziegfeld," she said very earnestly, "I am going back to Hollywood. The new lines they just gave me are terrible. I wouldn't say such lines. No, no, no, don't talk to me. I am going back to Hollywood!"

And so on and on and on, until finally Mr. Ziegfeld, his brow in a sweat, was able to interrupt long enough to say that there must be some mistake, as he was sure there could be no "new" lines, and that everything would be all right. This appeared to satisfy Miss Lupe, but that was not the end.

The telephone rang again and the voice said it was that of a reporter for the Sun-Telegraph and was it true that Lupe was going back to Hollywood? Mr. Ziegfeld replied that it positively was not true, and to forget anything like that. He was about to hang up the telephone when he heard a titter.

That was enough. He hastily went to the room of Lew Brown, one of the creators of "Hot-Cha," and there he found Brown, Ray Henderson, Mark Hellinger, Bobby Connolly and a sure-enough reporter, who had been asked to do his part. The conspirators were all laughing, and roared the louder when he entered. They had put over a hoax on the boss.

"You—you—well, that's what you are!" he said and joined in the laugh at the joke on him, which he later told gleefully in the Nixon office.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Tonight in the Alvin, and all nights throughout the week, as well as on Saturday afternoon, public auditions will be held to select "The Girl With the Sweetest Voice," the event being under the auspices of Station WCAE and the Sun-Telegraph. The programs will include presentation of stars of WCAE as the orchestra of that broadcasting station.

Small Timer says some people are so modest they hire press agents so they won't have to brag about themselves.

* * *

The most heavily attended performances of "Hot-Cha" in the Nixon have been the matinees. That is saying something, when it is considered that the house was sold out at all night performances last week. The answer lies in the number of general admission tickets sold—meaning "standing room only"—which was very large both Wednesday and Saturday last week.

Fay Templeton, former musical comedy and operetta favorite, who made Pittsburgh her home for many years, has taken up her residence in Hollywood. Kenneth Thomson, Pittsburgh actor, who has been in Hollywood several years, recently completed a tour of the Far West in support of Miss Billie Burke (Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld), in "The Vinegar Tree," which Mary Boland played in the East. Mr. Thomson also has finished the screen work with Kay Francis in "The Famous Ferguson Case" and has been selected to appear with Harold Lloyd in "Working Wives"... Richard Bennett will open in "Cyrano De Bergerac" in Los Angeles tonight, and a week later Walter Hampden will open there in the Brian Hooker version of the same play. For one week the two "Cyranos" will be in opposition.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: A letter for Theodore Dreiser, in your care, is here. Where can he be located? . . . Rockne's name still is listed in the South Bend phone tome . . . The Lit Digs is sending out ballots again, and they ask you: "Do you favor repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment?" . . . That's wrong, because it is impossible to repeal the Eighteenth or any amendment . . . It is absolutely contrary to the Constitution of the U. S. . . . Once an Amendment, it can never be taken out . . . The word "voidance" should be substituted for "repeal" . . . Here's how the Constitution provides for a voidance . . . A new amendment, as the latest expression of the people of the U. S., supersedes all previous legislation . . . By passing a new amendment, the effect of the 18th can be voided, but it cannot never be repealed . . . There, now! Tell that to Lowell Thomas.

Would you be a nice person and do something about the poor ushers in movie houses who have to stand like statues in lobbies or at the rear of the aisles? . . . Last night at Hollywood I couldn't resist the impulse and as I passed some of them, I said: "Aw, relax!" . . . It makes me nervous seeing them stand erect and motionless for so long . . . It's all a front on the part of the managements, who also ask you to remove your hat if you're standing in the rear, but what goes on on the stage is considered good manners.

Fred Allen called. Said a lotta people in New York haven't bothered going to the Seabury trials . . . they're waiting for it to go into the Cut-Rate Ticket Place . . . He says he'll be in soon and attempt to regain his standing—and he hoped that you'd recall that he was the Izzy Elinson of his day.

Monta Bell and Buddy DeSylva want an answer pronto . . . I hear that Harry Richman would be willing to work for nothing in Ziegfeld's "Hot-Cha" now that Lupe is to be in it . . . Dr. Vizetelly is sending an entire set of the new Encyclopedia he got out for F&W—25 miniature books . . . What a job! . . . Do you know that most of the stars (female) use a grease paint called "Sallow Old Man?" . . . Say something about that florist, will ya? . . . He chased a girl customer for two blocks last night, in the cold, without his hat and coat, just to give her 50 cents change she had forgotten . . . A pest was in today and wanted you to take up some sort of a campaign she had in mind. Told her you were busier than ever, and she thought I was very rude because I couldn't make an appt for her . . . One more like her and I quit!

Holtz wants to see you or talk to you about something . . . A new show soon due will be christened "Bacardi Cocktail," backed by the Bacardi firm of Cuba . . . Did you know that there still is a law on the local books that goes: "A person who loiters about a building with intent to overhear discourses therein and to print it or publish same, is guilty of a misdemeanor?" . . . Mannie Seff, the co-author of "Event," feels badly about your line in last Monday's. Said it upset him a great deal . . . That, as a matter of fact, he told everyone that Forrest Wilson wrote more of the show than he (Mannie) did . . . Thyra Samter Winslow called. Said thanks very much . . . Mark Vance, who is editing "Little Mike" for Zit, wants to see you . . . Corinne Buchanan, a swell gal, called this morning. Said when she got to her publicity desk at the C. P. Casino she found that Solomon had left for Florida and that she had been fired. If you hear of a job for her, please let me know . . . As Jean de La Bruyere once chirped: "From the age of 13 to the age of 21 a girl wishes she were beautiful; afterwards, she wishes she were a man."

George Olsen passes this along, which a president for a famous motor car firm told him . . . Seems that they suddenly found that they've been building the automobile backwards . . . In other words, any one of the body models, if placed on a car backwards, would give a car more speed of from 5 to 10 miles per hour. The air resistance at the rear of the car is so great it impedes the speed . . . An example of this—that very fast fish the dolphin, and the porpoise, are very blunt in front and taper off to nothing . . . This probably is not new to you, but the auto manufacturers only recently got hep to it . . . George K. Arthur called . . . That photo of Jimmy Walker you liked so much in Station Master Egan's office at the Pennsy Depot is being duplicated for you . . . Frank Hawk's has been offered a commission as Lieut. Commander in the Naval Reserve Force. He may take it because the Army Reserve Force will not promote him above the rank of captain.

O'Brien and McLaglen In Harris Film

George O'Brien is appearing on the Harris screen in "The Gay Caballero." It's the story of an ex-college boy, who goes West and gets into a battle with a Mexican land baron. Victor McLaglen, prominent in the supporting cast, is on the college boy's side, so he ought to come out okay. It's a safe bet that he wins Conchita Montenegro, for she's the heroine.

School Days For Film Youth

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 29.

With a studio full of young talent on his hands, David Selznick, boss of R. K. O., is prepared to start a school of acting on the lot.

To this end, Albert Lovejoy, formerly an instructor in the Cambridge School of Drama, is now en route to Hollywood with a nice contract in his pocket.

Mr. Lovejoy, I am informed, has played and directed in stock and has been a patron of the little theaters. At one time or another, he also has taught dramatics at the University of Washington and at my own alma mater, Columbia.

Lewis Stone

His work in Hollywood, for the present at least, will be to take charge of the dramatic education of Gwili Andree, Phyllis Clare, Julie Haydon, Jacques de Bujac, Creighton Chaney and such other young players as R. K. O. may bring in from time to time.

HERE'S GOSSIP

Lewis Stone is probably the only actor in Hollywood to hold a commission in the Chinese army. It's an honorary distinction given him when he was a major overseas . . . The "Strange Interlude" company is working on a closed set, meaning no visitors. Clark Gable tells me the asides require some very complicated hocus-pocus with sound-tracks, but that the rushes come up to expectations . . . Ward Morehouse, N. Y. columnist, will come out here to write the treatment for the play he sold to Warners. While he's on the coast, his column will be called "Hollywood After Dark." . . . Saw Anna Q. Nilsson at M. G. M. and she'll take a test there. . . . As expected, George O'Brien has signed the new Fox contract. His next film will be from Stewart Edward White's "The Killer" . . . Laurence Stallings is in town. Arrived with J. Robert Rubin, M. G. M.'s attorney, and will stay for three or four weeks. If he can be anchored to a typewriter, M. G. M. wants him to do the treatment of William McFee's "The Harbor-Master" . . . Said hello to Walter Huston today and he asked me "How's the oil business?" What a flattering mistake! . . . Also was snubbed by Will Rogers when I asked him about the Sino-Japanese situation. Am I slipping? (No cracks please) . . . Mona Maris was lunching at the Embassy, also Natalie Moorhead . . . Sally Eilers was there, too, and Mrs. Clark Gable.

MUSIC

SYRIA MOSQUE — Pittsburgh Symphony Society and Walter Gieseking

PROGRAM

Two Movements from "Antique Dances"
Ballet: Gagliarda, Saltarella, Canario ..... Respighi
Concerto in C Major for Piano ..... Mozart
Two Movements from "A Syrian Night"
Asp Death
Sunrise ..... Whitmer
Suite for Orchestra, Op. 19 ..... Dohnanyi
Burlesque in D Minor for piano and orchestra ..... Strauss
Bacchanale from "Samson and Delila" ..... Saint-Saens

The concert of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society in Syria Mosque last night was the best attended of the season and certainly one of its happiest concerts. There was not a grave moment in all the music played, and though there came a dull period, there was a good surge in the program.

Mr. Lissfelt

We anxiously awaited hearing T. Carl Whitmer's work after a long silence, during which period modernism and cacophony have advanced beyond our pace. What a surprise it was to hear music of Pittsburgh's exponent of impressionism and find it so tame. The two movements played last night were dances. They had a disappointing lack of oriental coloring, and yet were pleasant music.

Antonio Modarelli conducted with a sure hand, and if there were any doubts of his growing abilities they were dispelled during the handling of Richard Strauss' enormously difficult "Burelesque."

The orchestra made a good showing in the Dohnanyi Suite; its very best came in the accompaniment of the Strauss number, in which Walter Gieseking, soloist of the concert, played resplendently. The composition belongs to the Liszt species; it is frankly music to exploit the solo piano and to entertain, trivial, and for the gallery but excellent recreation among classics, as daring a treatment for piano as Strauss in later years practiced upon the entire orchestra.

Gieseking is the finest musician among great pianists of the day. He was introduced into the program through the least interesting of Mozart's concertos, the first movement of which was one of the vapid 10 minutes of the season. Neither orchestra nor pianist could save what Mozart had failed to give life enough to survive, not even through the vivacious cadenza. The limpid singing voice of the andante was quite a relief and the finale saved the day. How skilfully Gieseking can adapt his technique and tone to managing two works of totally different styles is a mark of his big musical nature. As encore he gave his own arrangement of Strauss' "Serenade," and then, in keeping with the "Burlesque," an amusing reading of Dubussy's "Golliwog's Cakewalk."

J. FRED LISSFELT.

M'GRAW AND DOYLE ONLY SURVIVORS

A QUARTER OF a century elapsed between California training trips for the New York National League club. The present conditioning work of the Giants in Los Angeles marks their first spring visit to that section since 1907. The coast didn't make much of a hit with them at that time. They were kept idle 10 straight games by rain, and though they got away to a good start in the pennant race, winning 24 of their first 27 games and grabbing off 17 straight victories from April 25 to May 19, they slumped so badly later that they wound up in fourth place, their lowest finish in five seasons.

John McGraw

So California was abandoned as a training place in 1908 in favor of Marlin, Tex. Almost every trace of McGraw's club has been wiped out in the meantime. Of all the 1907 crew, the only men remaining in the big leagues are the Giant manager himself, and Larry Doyle, former second baseman, now traveling secretary of the club.

THE REGULAR CATCHERS of the Giants that year were Roger Bresnahan, who introduced shin guards in the opening game on April 11, and Frank Bowerman. The pitchers were Christy Mathewson, Joe McGinnity, Dummy Taylor, Leon Ames, George Wiltse, Cecil Ferguson, Mike Lynch. In the infield during the season appeared Dan McGann, Tommy Corcoran, Bill Dahlen, Arthur Devlin, Larry Doyle, Fred Merkle, Sammy Strang, Danny Shay and John Hannifan.

Mike Donlin, injured in 1906, did not play in 1907, and the outfield was made up of Spike Shannon, of Oakmont; Cy Seymour and George Browne. Shannon, also an independent football player of note around here, was sold to the Pirates the following year. Corcoran, previously a Cincinnati shortstop, who was released on July 18, 1907, came to this region to finish the season as manager of the Uniontown club in the Pennsylvania, Ohio and Maryland League.

TWO NOTABLE ADDITIONS to the Giants that year were Merkle and Doyle, who succeeded McGann and Corcoran at first and second bases. Merkle was to win a place all his own in baseball history the following season by knocking the Giants out of a pennant through his famous oversight in failing to touch second.

Doyle, bought from Springfield, Ill., for $4,500, played in 69 games and hit .260. Larry was destined to lead the National League in batting in 1915 with the lowest average that has ever topped the circuit, just .320.

DOYLE ALSO HAD the distinction of being the cause of the most unusual ruling ever made by a National League president. Larry, like Fred Clarke, had a habit of hurling his bat backward unconsciously after hitting the ball. Opposing catchers complained of injuries, and in a ruling aimed at Doyle and Clarke in particular League President Harry C. Pulliam decreed a fine for each offense on any player throwing his bat behind the plate thereafter. Doyle devised a novel means of breaking himself of the habit. He tied a piece of stout twine around the end of his bat, with a loop that hung loosely around his left wrist. That kept the bat from being flung backward after his swing, and Larry had merely to slip his hand out of the loop before starting his run to first base. But he had to use the loop a long time before it effected a complete cure.

Jimmy Wilson

DAVE KERR, the basketball veteran wintering here, and Jimmy Wilson, star catcher of the world champion Cardinals, have been buddies since their school days in Philadelphia. Up to 12 years ago they were crack soccer players and club mates on the best teams in and around the Quaker City.

Kerr was the goalie and Wilson the inside right, and Dave declares Jimmy was as speedy and clever as any of the players of the time. Kerr gave up soccer for the floor sport for no other reason than that soccer was not nearly so profitable. It was for the same reason that Wilson quit soccer for baseball. Jimmy was also a pretty good basketball player, too, according to Kerr.

BEANS REARDON, National League umpire, during a visit to the training camp of the New York Giants in Los Angeles the other day, pronounced Wilson the best catcher in baseball, adding that his affiliation with the senior circuit as an umpire had nothing to do with the opinion expressed.

Reardon declares that Wilson can do everything that Mickey Cochrane can do, and then some, and is superior to the star of the A's as an all-around backstop. Beans thinks the 1931 world series proved that, and says that if Cochrane was physically unfit in that series, as claimed, he must have recovered very quickly, as he showed no sign of disability in the subsequent exhibition games in Japan.

THE ACTION OF President Frank Calder, of the National Hockey League, in suspending indefinitely Red Horner and Charley Conacher, of the Toronto club, was taken to offset a fast one that Dick Irvin, Toronto coach, tried to pull in a recent game against the New York Rangers. There is a rule under which a player is suspended automatically for the next game when he has drawn three major penalties. Horner and Conacher already stood charged with two major penalties each. Both were on the crippled list, though in uniform. Just before the end of the Ranger game, Irvin sent the two players on the ice, though Toronto already had a full team in. That called for a major penalty against each of the extra two skaters.

IRVIN'S FOXY SCHEME was this: Owing to injuries, Horner and Conacher would not be able to play in the next game anyhow. By having them draw their third major penalty at such a time, the game for which they would be suspended would be one in which their services would not be available in any event.

Then they could start all over again with a clean slate, entitled to three more major penalties before becoming subject to another suspension. It was quick thinking, but President Calder thought just as fast. He refused to allow the usual course to be followed, and instead of drawing only the automatic one-game suspension, Horner and Conacher have been set down indefinitely.

JUST BECAUSE YOU haven't heard anything about Benny Leonard for some time, don't get the idea that he has abandoned his plan to try a comeback. As a matter of fact he'll be right back in there tonight to attempt another step.

Benny Leonard

Leonard is booked for a 10-round bout at the St. Nicholas Arena in New York with Billy McMahon, a capable welterweight, and figures that if he can clear this hurdle he will go right on to bigger things.

THE RECENT LET-DOWN in Benny's activities was due to an attack of grip that laid him up for several weeks. But he has been back in hard training for some time and hopes to convince a skeptical fandom that he isn't too old—he'll be 36 in April—to make the grade again. He was boxing for small money in the sticks before he became ill. He drew $300 for one appearance, less for others. But he hopes to get back in the big dough. "I yet will prove that a fellow who has lived cleanly can, at my age, return after a long absence and excel at his game," Leonard says. Benny discusses the Pal Silvers fiasco frankly, and declares he will live it down. "I'll make my friends forget it," he says. "Time adjusts everything."

By JULIUS LEVIN

Homestead High School, holding the unique distinction of being the only school to win the W. P. I. A. L. basketball championship three times, begins its drive for its fourth league title tonight when it engages Burgettstown Union High, champion of Section XIV, in a second-round battle of the W. P. I. A. L. eliminations in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

Bill Campbell

A top-heavy favorite to ascend the district basketball throne as a result of its exceptionally fine showing in the Section VII race, Homestead will be striving for its tenth successive victory when it opposes Coach Roy Mann's quintet tonight.

BEATEN BY SCOTT

Only one team has taken the measure of the Milltowners, Scott High, of North Braddock, last year's state champion, turning the trick twice. The scores were 24-19 and 16-10.

Besides winning the league championship in 1923, 1924 and 1929, Homestead is one of the four W. P. I. A. L. champions to win the state crown. This feat was accomplished in 1924.

Coach Campbell announced today that he would start his regular lineup against Burgettstown, Gene Sullivan and Ralph Stafura will be at forward, Walter Miller at center and Joe Sidders and Borgan at the guards. The Homestead record for the season follows:

Homestead	30	Mt. Lebanon	13
Homestead	19	Scott	24
Homestead	16	Braddock	23
Homestead	24	Allderdice	22
Homestead	31	Mt. Lebanon	13
Homestead	15	Monessen	17

*Homestead	28	McKeesport	10
Homestead	44	Carlton	18
Homestead	16	Scott	16
Homestead	26	Rankin	19
Homestead	32	Norwin	19
*Homestead	28	Munhall	17
*Homestead	30	Duquesne	26
*Homestead	40	McKeesport	16
*Homestead	34	Carlton	16
Homestead	35	Rankin	9
*Homestead	32	Munhall	13
*Homestead	23	Duquesne	23

*Leagues games.

Homestead will find Burgettstown a worthy rival tonight. The Mann-coached floor machine swept through its league schedule of 14 league games with only one defeat on its record, this coming at the hands of Hickory in the final battle of the season.

Both teams have large followings and the game is expected to attract one of the largest crowds of the tournament. Burgettstown's record for the season follows:

Burgettstown	39	Trinity	30
Burgettstown	37	Bethany	31
Burgettstown	32	Bethany	30
Burgettstown	31	Findlay	15
Burgettstown	19	Peters	13
Burgettstown	21	South Fayette	14
Burgettstown	22	Cecil	19
Burgettstown	24	Oakdale	20
Burgettstown	20	McDonald	18
Burgettstown	30	Hickory	23
Burgettstown	44	Findlay	15
Burgettstown	32	Peters	13
Burgettstown	29	South Fayette	14
Burgettstown	20	Cecil	19
Burgettstown	33	Oakdale	24
Burgettstown	31	McDonald	18
Burgettstown	19	Hickory	23
Burgettstown	32	Trinity	30
Burgettstown	23	Washington	18

M'DONALD VANQUISHED

Burgettstown had to fight through a strong field to win the Section XIV, but the Panhandle quintet was equal to the task. One of its big achievements was two victories over McDonald, last year's Section XIV champion. In their first meeting, Burgettstown won by a 20-18 score, but in the second engagement, the margin of victory was increased, Burgettstown grabbing a 31-24 verdict.

Yaksic and Smith will be at forward for Burgettstown, Reasons will play center and Malone and Zelenko are expected to hold down the guarding posts.

Sixteen of the leading high school teams in the Allegheny and Kiski valley begin their annual basketball tournament in the New Kensington High School gym tonight. Play will continue all week.

Schenley and Fifth Avenue, tied for first place in Section I of the City League, clash tomorrow afternoon in the Pitt Stadium pavilion to determine which will meet Allegheny, Section II champion, for the local title.

The City League series will be ushered in Friday afternoon at the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: THE EATER OF 750,000 PANCAKES—In celebrating his twentieth wedding anniversary, Willards Larsen, of Hartington, Cedar County, Neb., will have achieved the championship in pancake eating. Of the 1,716,720 pancakes which Mrs. Larsen has baked since her wedding day, 20 years ago, the veteran farmer himself has eaten in excess of three-quarters of a million pancakes. This quantity would stack up to a height of 12,500 feet, which is considerably higher than the highest peak in the North Swiss Alps.

The former middleweight champion of the world drifted into the sports sanctum this morning to announce that his Jimmy is all set for his non-title battle with Jackie Fields, the world welterweigh champion, at Motor Square Garder tonight, and the first thing he did was to ask for a match.

Jackie Fields

He wanted to light a cigaret, but he's always like that, always looking for matches. He keeps the fight promoters awake at nights turning him down.

Jimmy Belmont

Well, anyway, Klaus avers that his Jimmy is ready and will win tonight. It seems he told us the same thing when Belmont boxed Fields before, in the same ring, and got a draw in a bout in which Fields fought most of the route with a terribly gashed eye. And while he was telling us all about it today the telephone rang and there was Ray Alvis, of Chicago, on the line to inform us he's still sore about what we wrote about his Tony Herrera's fight with Mickey Cohen at the Garden last Monday night, but let's talk about his Jackie Fields' fight tonight. Fields, he says, is in fine fettle and can't keep from winning. In fact, he'll make Belmont get on his horse and tak. it on the run. At this point a happy thought occurs to us.

BIG CROWD FORESEEN

The Garden reports good times are here again—judging from the advance sale for tonight's fight. The ticket demand is heavy and all that sort of thing, which it should be for a fight in which both men are sure to win. We've been waiting a long time to see this sort of a battle, with two winners and no loser, and draws thrown out.

Babe Colima, Mexican featherweight, whose soul, it appears, belongs to Alvis, makes his local debut in the eight-round semi-final, against Pete Mazzeo, of Cleveland. Jerry Hart, Troy Hill heavyweight, and Leo Clements, of Jeannette, now under the wing of Bunny Buntach, box the second bout, and Eddie Yarosz, of Monaca, brother of Ted, meets Mickey O'Brien, of North Braddock, in the opener at 8:30.

OTHER BATTLES TONIGHT

SUHR POUNDS BALL IN DRILLS

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 29.—Pirate baseball followers who were inclined to look upon Gus Suhr, lanky first baseman, as an impotent factor in the matter of hitting, are in for a pleasant shock, if the actions of Suhr in the daily battling drills can be taken as a criterion.

The Bucco infielder has been pounding the ball to all corners of the field in the drills held thus far and local observers believe that if the Californian continues his work during the coming season, he will be a sensation in the National League.

The entire squad held its first workout yesterday, the late arrivals were allowed to take things easy for the first day, getting the kinks out of their muscles with a light workout.

Gibson is having his troubles with the first squad, which has been drilling for the past week. The players are in wonderful shape, and inclined to bear down. The Bucco pilot is kept busy cautioning them to go easy. The weather has been ideal for training, with a scorching sun beaming down on the players during the drills.

PERKINS RECOVERS

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—T. Philip Perkins, former British amateur golf champion, recuperated sufficiently yesterday to hope for early release from the hospital, where he is under treatment for a bullet wound received early Saturday in a gun fight that climaxed the Embassy Night Club holdup here.

PLAN DRIVING CONTEST

SPORT VIGNETTES

Ray Steele and Frank Speers, the former Georgia Tech football player, were going through their paces in the semi-final of the wrestling show at Motor Square Garden the other night . . . Ray Fabiani, the big promoter man from Philadelphia, came to the ringside and took an unoccupied chair alongside me . . . Ray is not really a big promoter physically; he is fairly tall, but sleek and smooth and alert, a former concert violinist who can lead a symphony with the best of them, and, indeed, has done so.

"How do you like it?" asked Fabiani, who was anxious to get off on the right foot on this, his third, break into Pittsburgh as a wrestling promoter, the first two having ended in costly financial failures . . . "What?" your reporter asked . . . "The wrestling," was the reply . . . "Oh, is that wrestling?" was the snappy, or perhaps sappy, comeback of this captious critic, who had to be shown . . . Fabiani sniffed . . . "Yes, THAT is wrestling," he replied . . . "Not the old-fashioned conception of wrestling that put the customers to sleep, but the new, modern type that packs 'em in everywhere and will do the same thing here if given a chance."

"Do you call that punching and slapping and that other bologny wrestling?" we sniffed back at Faby . . . "You don't understand," he replied . . . "You have to have a certain amount of that to stir up the fans . . . You'll see as we go along . . . Just now it may not mean anything, but, after the customers see a few shows and become familar with the wrestlers and begin to pick their favorites, they'll want to kill the villains who get rough with their fair-haired boys . . . That's what draws 'em . . . It gives 'em a chance to rant and rave and tear their hair and give vent to indignation . . . You'll see, you'll see."

"Well, anyway," was our comeback to that, "there's one thing to be thankful for—none of those guys has dived out of the ring so far and none of them has been thrown out, either . . . That's some improvement." . . . Faby must have given us up as hopeless, for he got up to leave . . . "Got to go back to the box office and see that no one runs away with the money," he said . . . "I'll see you later," and off he move' . . . He had no sooner taken his leave than—what? . . . There was the great Mr. Steele on his way through the ropes, headed for the press table and US . . . Right over our new chapeau he rolled his perspiring body and then on down onto what passes for our lap and then under the ring while ringsider, fled precipitously in panic for their lives! . . . Looking back, now, it seems as if it was all prearranged to happen that way.

Can't you figure it out? . . . There was that Fabiani man going to Mr. Steele, one of his most accomplished modern style wrestlers, and saying, "Now, Ray, do me a favor. There's a bimbo on one of the papers here who thinks we're all crooks and that you wrestlers are a lot of hamdonnies who go around the country burning down orphan asylums and poisoning wells . . . When you get in there I'll go down and sit with him and chew the rag for a while and then I'll get up and leave . . . You spot him, and, as soon as I get away, you fall right out of that ring into his lap and down his throat if you can . . . Make him think he's a part of the show . . . Don't kill him—just cripple him in the head so he'll think wrestling is the bee's wax . . . Won't that be great fun?"

Well, maybe it wasn't all arranged that way, for even Belasco got some of his best effects by accident . . . But we had the last laugh, anyway.

DUKES OUTLINE POLICIES

Decisions to limit post-season basketball competition to the annual alumni game, to seek membership in the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association and to give mushball the call over baseball on the intramural sports card, reached at a recent meeting of the athletic council of Duquesne University, were ratified by the executive board of the university today.

Final arrangements for the fourth annual state Catholic high school basketball tournament, to be held Friday and Saturday in the Duquesne gym, were made at the meeting. The Duke Preps won the state title in the tourney last season. Games with other colleges and universities may be arranged for the mushball team.

DUKES BATTLE GENEVA TONIGHT

PITT QUINTET TUSSLES WITH HARVARD

GAMES TONIGHT

Duquesne vs. Geneva at Beaver Falls.
Bethany at Westminster.
Pitt vs. Harvard at Cambridge.

By JESS CARVER

Just by way of giving the week's college floor program a good shove, Coach Chick Davies will take the blankets off his admirable Duquesne University Dukes tonight and turn 'em loose against Geneva's staggering Covenanters. The turning loose will take place at Beaver Falls which doesn't make the Dukes better than a 10 to 7 shot to win at that.

In the only other contest of interest locally booked for the night, Pitt's punch-goofy Panthers tussle with Harvard in the Phi Beta Kappaish atmosphere of Cambridge. All other district teams are resting more or less quietly picking up strength for the few last outbursts of the 1931-32 campaign. Bethany plays at Westminster.

At a meeting tonight prior to the Bison-Titan tilt in New Wilmington official action will be taken by Westminster athletic authorities regarding post-season basketball contests. Although no invitations have been extended possible contests with Duquesne and Mt. Union, Ohio Conference champion, will be considered.

A few weeks ago Geneva came to town to battle the Dukes here, dropping a close decision in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion. Since then, things have been going no so well at Geneva. Westminster and Grove City both nicked the Covenanters last week. Genevians dislike being nicked by anyone, and particularly by Westminster or Grove City and ever more particularly by the Dukes. The Coveys have a good team despite their half dozen setbacks, a better team perhaps, than the record shows.

If they could take the Dukes tonight, they'd be the first local team to accomplish the feat, they'd make up for many of their shortcomings during the past and present Westminster with fits and just claim to all tri-state area championships for the season.

Keeps Your HAIR NEAT

Rich-looking . . . Orderly

If your hair lacks natural gloss and lustre, or is difficult to keep in place it is very easy to give it that rich, glossy, refined and . . . orderly appearance . . . so essential to well-groomed men.

Just rub a little Glostora through your hair . . . once or twice a week . . . or after shampooing, and your hair will then stay, each day . . . just as you comb it.

Glostora softens the hair and makes it pliable. Then—even stubborn hair—will stay in place of its own accord.

It gives your hair that natural, rich, well-groomed effect, instead of leaving it stiff and artificial looking as sticky lotions do.

Glostora also keeps the scalp soft, and the hair healthy by restoring the natural oils from which the hair derives its health, life, gloss and lustre.

Try it!—See how easy it is to keep your hair combed—any style you like—whether brushed lightly or combed down flat. If you want your hair to lie down particularly smooth and tight after applying Glostora, simply moisten your hair with water before brushing it.

Central League Is Reorganized

CANTON, O., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Revival of the Central Baseball League for the season of 1932 became a certainty here yesterday at a meeting of club owners, six of whom posted their forfeit bonds. The six-club circuit will consist of Dayton, Canton and Akron, O.; Erie, Pa., Fort Wayne, Ind., and a sixth city, the identity of which will be withheld for several days.

The opening of the season was set for May 3 and the close for Labor Day. The season will be split, the first half ending June 30. The schedule calls for 140 games. A player limit of 14, exclusive of manager, was decreed, together with a $2,500 salary limit.

when Speers, Steele's opponent, also fell out a few moments later, into somebody else's lap (his judgment of distance isn't so good), and then Steele, one of Fahy's big shots, wound up losing the referee's decision . . . Ha, ha—wasn't that just too funny for words?

And they're saying, too, that Fabiani made the proud boast when he hit town that he'd put over wrestling in Pittsburgh this time or bust, and he'd make the front pages of the newspapers, too . . . And danged if he didn't, with John Maxos lying unconscious in the ring after being thrown by Strangler Lewis in the main bout, and being carted away to a hospital, where he remained in a state of coma for hours and then left the following night . . . When Maxos first lay there spreadeagled on the mat everybody thought it was a phony and they yelled for the big bum to cut out the acting and get up . . . He might have died, and what a grim joke it would have been then!

Anyway, all of the news writers followed Maxos' limp body to the dressing room and watched doctors work over him for a half hour and then saw him carried out on a stretcher to an ambulance . . . Maybe that was an act, too, but, boy, if it was, it was worth the price of admission, and a lot of us got in on passes . . . But what happened? . . . They pinched the Strangler and held him under bond to await the outcome of his victim's injuries, and it was first page stuff, pictures, story and all. . . . You'll pardon us if we're still bewildered and can't quite figure out whether it was all the hooey or on the level . . . All we know is that the rasslers (they are a funny race) will be back again next week, and Faby appears to have got that foothold on the public imagination here that he has craved so long.—HARRY KECK.

DETROIT NEXT FOR JACKETS

By CARL W. SHATTO

Feeling in the best of spirits after their 7-3 victory Saturday night over the Indians, at Cleveland, the Yellow Jacket entourage is headed for Detroit, where they will clash with the Olympics in another International Hockey League affray tomorrow night. The Pittsburgh icemen are in fifth place at this writing, and victory will enhance greatly their already slim chance of advancing to one of the league's money berths. Detroit is in fourth position, two points remote from the Canary Shirts.

The Reidmen play two other foes this week. They return to their home ice at Duquesne Garden to oppose Buffalo, league leaders, Thursday, and then accompany the Bisons back to the Empire State for an encounter next Saturday night.

On the heels of its defeat by the Jackets, the Cleveland team lost again last night, bowing to Syracuse at Syracuse, 4-1.

Basketball Coaches In East Organize

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—(INS.)—Plans were under way today for the organization of an eastern section of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, which is composed mainly of midwestern court mentors.

Coaches from 20 colleges in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey began formation of the new group at a meeting her. A committee will meet again on March 27 to pass on rules revisions suggested by 60 eastern coaches. The suggestions will be urged for adoption at the annual meeting of the National Association in Chicago on April 1 and 2.

OAKIE MAKES TRIPLE PLAY

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Jack Oakie, screen actor, starred in a triple play at Wrigley Field yesterday when baseball teams, composed largely of major league players, battled under the leadership of Joe E. Brown and Buster Keaton.

The Browns defeated the Keatons, 10 to 3, before 8,500 fans, whose paid admissions went to create a fund to help finance the Olympic Games next summer. New York Giants, Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates, here for spring training, were included in the lineups.

The triple play, which featured the game, came in the third inning. Bill Jurges, Chicago Cub infielder, tossed the ball to Oakie, who juggled it at second a moment and then threw it to Harry Taylor, another Cub, for the third out.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Will those flashy Redbirds fly away with their third straight pennant? Major league men with whom I have discussed this question are convinced the Cardinals are out-and-out favorites to win the National League flag. This writer shares the belief; I wrote last summer the opinion that the St. Louis flock was the best team in baseball and that over a long stretch of games it would show itself in such a light. Gaining a few "breaks" in the world series with the Athletics, they were able to subdue the American League champs.

When the Cards were courting the cellar in the early part of the 1930 campaign, I told Gabby Street I thought he had a club that was as good as any in the league. He held the same idea, but the race was half gone before the team began to click. But when it did it laid waste to the other flag contenders.

The part played by Sparky Adams in the exploits of the Redbirds is worthy of note. When Sparky was sent by the Buccos to the Cards for a song, I ventured to say that the little "outcast" might win himself a regular job in the St. Louis infield. So my score on the Street aggregation may even up for the others on which I missed fire. Anyhow, Sparky proved a friend in need as the Redbirds copped their two flags.

The loss of Burleigh Grimes, however, may assert itself in the lineup of the ranking monarchs of the sport. In the personal comparison of games won and lost, Jerome Dizzy Dean may measure up to the spitball star, but Grimes' influence was reflected in the aggressive actions of other Redbirds. And baseball success being largely a matter of teamwork, it will be interesting to note the effect of Burleigh's departure. It might be "too bad" for Messrs. Rickey and Breadon were anything to happen to Jimmy Wilson or Frankie Frisch. Demoralization then easily could set in.

By the same Grimes token, those pesky Cubs are likely to cut up some fancy didoes. Don't give any odds on the chance of a flareup between Burleigh and The Rajah. Hornsby and Grimes may battle with words on the field, but they have a common idea regarding a winning ball club and neither holds bitterness when the game is done.

Moreover, the Bruins have added strength to an already strong contender. Infielders Herman and Hack may round out the trouble department of the club—the infield. Lefty Grimm and Woodie English, two of the best in their positions, should serve as an inspiration for the two newcomers, both of whom are being lavished with praise.

John McGraw stated a day or two ago the Giant fans were entitled to another flag and that they might get their wish. Maybe so, but, on paper at least, I like the Cardinals and Cubs over the Broadway cast. McGraw has everything a pennant winner requires except a first-class slab staff. The right-handed division of his sharpshooting corps is not impressive at this writing. Nevertheless, the veteran leaders will show the fans a great ball team.

With the Cardinals, Cubs and Giants mentioned as favorites for the one-two-three berths, the question of a candidate for the other money position is indeed a problem. Personally, I think Gibby's Pirates have a chance, the Bucco catching division being the risk. If Finney, or Brenzel, comes through, the Buccos will be no pushover for anybody. Max Carey's Dodgers also must be considered. Scoops will have a terrific punch and his team will be smarter than the Flatbush crews of recent years.

BELLEVUE NOT TO PLAY IN CITY LEAGUE

By TOM BIRKS

The organization of a new club in Bellevue, with an idea of applying for a franchise in the City League, was declared unfounded by Cy Rheam, former baseball star, who has been mentioned as the probable pilot of the club which is to play at the newly-built Bellevue Athletic Field.

"We have no financial angels in Bellevue," stated Rheam this morning, "and I am not spending any money to try to compete with teams in the City League class. The fans may as well know, I am not interested in running a team classed in the semi-professional ranks."

On the other hand, Rheam admitted he and the other well-known baseball men were working on the formation of a County League, which is to be strictly amateur.

MEETING PLANNED

The ground work is already laid. Beechview, Stowe, Bellevue, Wilkinsburg, Jeannette and Homewood will attend a meeting this week, and it is probable the loop will be organized.

What the City League will do is still another question. Homewood is sitting on the fence, and while Art Rooney, the popular North Side sportsman, has been out of town on his long-delayed honeymoon, it is felt he is adverse to backing a City League club, but that he might be sold the idea to run an amateur club in the County League.

Because two of the present City League executives are expected to quit at the organization meeting, the teams likely will elect a new set of officials.

Dormont, the defending champion, will break away from the big payroll. The South Hills officials already have held a couple of meetings and prepared definite ideas in keeping with the time.

AWAIT DEVELOPMENTS

It will be a couple of weeks before anything comes out of the present chaos. The smart managers are sitting back awaiting developments, knowing that the financial end is going to be light.

After a couple of seasons of dickerings, the consolidation of the Pittsburgh and West Penn Baseball Umpires' Associations was effected at a special meeting yesterday.

Committees from both organizations met and agreed upon certain things, and one name, the Pittsburgh Umpires' Association, was kept. Another meeting is to be held Sunday.

Modern MAGIC

TINY LAMPS flashed; flying fingers enlivened the telephone switchboard.

Idling in the hotel lobby, Tom Means watched, fascinated. Marvelous, this telephone service—a hundred miles in split seconds—modern magic. Then a thought struck him. Why not call home? Sue would be thrilled—it wouldn't cost much.

Casually he gave the number. "Booth number three," said the operator crisply. Means picked up the receiver—heard his wife's voice. And this was the wonder of it, her first words were:

"Tom, you dear, I knew you wouldn't forget! Our first wedding anniversary you've spent away from home!"

STOCK MARKET HOLDS FAIRLY FIRM TONE

Shares of Firms Serving Auto Industry Strong; Some Dip After Noon

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—The stock market maintained a fairly firm tone today, but failed to make much use of Leap Year's extra day.

Trading was extremely apathetic, and, while prices pushed up a point or two in many sections of the list, bulls showed a little inclination to press their advantage. Stocks of companies serving the automobile manufacturers were notably firm, presumably in response to the Ford plans. Rails also stiffened. After midday there were some fractional recessions from the best.

Stocks of automobile makers themselves did little, although Auburn pushed up several points. Among issues advancing 1 to 2 points were United States Steel, Bethlehem, American Can, American Telephone, American Rolling Mill, Electric Autolite, Briggs, Bullard, Borg-Warner, Woolworth, Penney, National Biscuit, Borden, Case, American Tobacco "B," Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Loew's, and others. In the rails, Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Norfolk and Western moved up 1 to 2. Pennsylvania was heavy, however. McKeesport ran into profit-taking, and General Asphalt eased, on loss of its suit against Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Company. Royal Dutch subsidiary. The Royal Dutch group firmed.

The railroad issues stiffered in response to the announcement of several substantial loans to the carriers by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Pennsylvania, however, eased in response to President Atterbury's statement that continuance of dividends would require increased revenues. Canadian Pacific's persistent strength was coupled with vague rumors over the possibility of unification of the two Canadian systems.

The General Asphalt suit against Anglo-Saxon Petroleum involved royalties to which General Asphalt claimed it was entitled in connection with its Vigas concession in Venezuela. The first decision in the British courts was in favor of General Asphalt, and indicated that substantial damages would be collected. This decision was later overturned, however, and the appeal to the House of Lords has been lost.

Week-end reports from industrial quarters dwelt upon the revival of activity in the Ford organization, and a better tone in steel prices, but the publication Steel estimates ingot output at 25 per cent of capacity, unchanged from the previous week.

The dollar was firm in the foreign exchange markets. The French franc opened at 3.93¼ cents, off ⅛ of a point, and sterling at $3.48⅝, off ⅛.

RAW SUGAR AT NEW LOW

The trade is unsettled by the divergent opinions of many in the stabilization group, which imperils the world agreement known as the "Chadbourne stabilization plan."

There is dimming hope that Java and Cuba will get together, and it is becoming apparent that unless Cuba gives in to Java's ideas concerning curtailment of the former's 1932 crop to approximately 2,350,000 tons against the Cuban sugar Institute's figure of 3,061,000, the whole plan will go by the board.

Idle Ship Tonnage Near 1922 Level

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(INS.)—Idle vessels in world shipping aggregated about 11,392,000 gross tons at the beginning of 1931, compared with 4,407,000 tons in 1923, the Commerce Department announced following an international survey today. Idle tonnage now approximates that of 1922.

Readjustment of international shipping apparently will be a gradual progress according to A. E. Sanderson, of the department's transportation division.

American idle ships at the beginning of the year amounted to 3,031,000 tons, of which 1,358,000 onst represented that of the shipping board and 1,646,000 tons of privately owned vessels.

New York Curb Market | Latest Financial News

Latest Events Inspire Fresh Encouragement.

—By B. C. FORBES—

FOR EIGHT DAYS not one national bank in the whole land failed. That is the most encouraging development of all.

CONSTRUCTIVE FORCES are at last gaining the upper hand. Facilities have been called into existence to supply abundant credit to any and every hard pressed but solvent institution, and this week, thanks to the Glass-Steagall law, a new reservoir of credit becomes available for banks which have taken the precaution of keeping themselves abnormally liquid.

Mr. Forbes

The reduction of the Federal Reserve discount rate in New York to three percent, the easier terms for bankers' and commercial bills, the fresh reduction in brokers' loans, the movement of most foreign exchanges in favor of this country, the strength in government and corporate bonds, the petering out of bank failures—all these furnish grounds for a greater measure of hopefulness than heretofore warranted.

As a matter of fact, sentiment in the highest financial circles has become distinctly better. The same is true over a large part of the country.

STOCK TRADING dwindled to negligible volume towards the end of last week. This, too, is a healthy sign. It suggests that urgent, necessitous liquidation has pretty well dried up.

Here, too, the public feel they have new reason for viewing the outlook more favorably. The forbidding of lending customers' stocks to short sellers without written permission—which goes into effect April 1—is regarded by the vast majority as a distinctly salutary step.

IT CANNOT YET be claimed that improvement has spread from sentiment to trade and industry in any marked degree. But since thought must always precede action, the betterment in sentiment is not to be poohpoohed. The Guaranty Trust Company aptly observes:

"The improvement in business sentiment noted in the first few weeks of the year has proceeded further this week. It is indicated in numerous ways — in spite of the fact that business activity has as yet failed to show any reversal of the long downward movement, the developments of January and February strengthen the outlook for recovery. The situation has reached a stage where psychological elements are of exceptional importance. Consequently the very fact that sentiment has improved must be regarded as constituting a significant favorable factor in the general prospect."

COMMODITIES WERE moving erratically. Cotton last week touched a new high price for the year; silk and rubber declined to a new minimum. Flour went to a new high; oats to a new low. Silver broke new high ground; lead new low ground, while rubber sank to its previous 1932 minimum. Wheat finished the week strong; raw sugar fell below a cent a pound.

It is now something, however, that the down trend in a number of commodities has been arrested.

MERCANTILE AGENCIES report slight gains in retail trade. But, industrial changes continued mixed. Output of shoes and cotton textiles is up; but railway car loadings, steel production, automobile output, bank clearings are still sluggish.

THERE YOU HAVE a brief, unbiased picture of economic conditions as February ends.

March should begin to show the improvement spring is generally—though not universally—expected to bring.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—Trading expanded slightly on the curb today, although volume was still so small that brokers regarded the market as only a trading affair in which even professionals were lightly interested.

EMBERS OF LOVE -:- Story of a Pretty Girl in Whom Burned The Flame of a Great Emotion -:- By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER XXII.

It was all over.

Lily Lou knelt by her suitcase and shut it with a click. Packing had not been hard. She was taking only the things that had been hers before her marriage. Her fur jacquette, and the velvet evening wrap, and all the things Ken had bought for her were to be left behind. She couldn't bear the sight of them.

Feverishly she glanced at the clock on the small table between their beds. She must be out of here before he came home. She could tear up her life by its roots, break her heart into little pieces: she could even take a railway ticket and $500 from Ken's father, but she couldn't face Ken.

He had gone to Peggy Sage's father and asked to be taken into the firm, had talked to Peggy about her . . . about their private life, their hopes, their struggles, and even about his disappointment, and his deciding that the marriage was a mistake.

He had done that to her.

And he had come back to her and talked to her lovingly, and seemingly frankly, all about losing his job, and never, never told her that there had been a family conference that he had sat with his father, and Capt. Sage, and taken the news that his marriage was annulled . . .

FRIGHTENING APPEARANCE

It was that . . . . that that she couldn't bear. If it were just losing him . . . if she were going to give him up because it were best for him, as Camille in the story gave up her lover . . . oh, that would be bearable . . . you could keep your heart warm forever, thinking that it was a good thing that you had done, that you had sacrificed yourself for the one you loved, who loved you . . . . And your sorrow would be something sad and sweet to carry around with you. But this . . . this knowing that there was no choice really, that you were practically abandoned . . . .

Lily Lou brushed hot, splashing tears off of the suitcase's scarred patent leather side.

"I've got to stop going over and over it. . . . he'll find me still here!" she thought, starting up in sudden fright.

She went into the bathroom and began to wash her swollen, disfigured face. She looked at her own reflection with shrinking surprise . . . Could this be she? Lily Lou Lansing, who used to be pretty? She put her hands, wonderingly, to her puffy eyes. She had never cried before . . . There hadn't been anything to cry about. Life had been all stretched out ahead of her, hers just to reach out and take . . .

THINKS OF PEGGY

And now . . . She began going over the interview with Ken's father again. He had proved to her that Ken wouldn't have any career if she stayed. He had proved that Ken didn't want her to stay, that he was sorry, that he was just staying with her because he was trying to do the right thing . . . . And all the while he was telling everything to the Sage girl . . . She knew about his losing his job, about the annulment . . . Everything that she thought was sacred to themselves.

In front of her own blotched face Lily Lou could see Peggy's face again . . . Peggy all fresh and radiant . . . Peggy being a little sorry for her, wanting to pay for her lunch, wishing her luck, and all the while knowing the sort of luck she'd drawn . .

The doorbell rang. Two sharp, short rings. Lily Lou stifled a scream. It was only the postman, but if she didn't hurry . . . if she didn't stop going over and over this, like a rat running round and round in a trap . . .

LEAVES RING BEHIND

"This is probably the way people go crazy," she thought, madly rubbing a powder puff over her face and neck, unmindful of the white sprinkling that settled on dark blue dress, "but I'm going to be all right as soon as I can get out of here . . . . When I'm on the train I'll be all right . . . I'd be all right now if my teeth would just stop chattering, and I could stop thinking . . . There! I was going off without my toothbrush!"

The suitcase had to be opened again, for the toothbrush and a tube of toothpaste to be put in, and that seemed to take a lot of time. She shut it in a frenzy, pulled on her coat, rushed for purse and gloves.

And then she remembered her wedding ring, the circlet of diamonds with its "Ken to Lily Lou. Forever and ever" that Ken had had engraved inside because she said she wanted it that way, not dreaming he really would . . .

Off it came, and a piece of skin from her knuckle with it. She left it on the tall chair in the hall. Then she picked up the suitcase and flew.

* * *

She fumbled in her purse, conscious of his looking at the fat roll of twenty-dollar bills that Ken's father had given her. In the coin purse she found two half dollars, waved away the change.

"The San Francisco Limited—my ticket's here somewhere—"

The Negro put down her bag. "That don't go till 6 o'clock, miss. It's just 3:22 now. Now where was it you was going?"

EMBARRASSED

Her cheeks flushed, she fumbled for something sensible to say. The man would think she was crazy, tearing down here in a taxi, with nearly three hours to wait.

"Yes, ma'am. We'll just check the bag, and you can come back later. The boat connecting with that train leaves here at 6 o'clock."

Still embarrassed, she thanked him, went upstairs to the waiting room. The gateman looked at her ticket, reminded her all over again that the San Francisco Limited connected with the 6 o'clock Oakland boat.

She used to be a commuter, once.

Used to live with May and Raymond, and work in San Francisco. It was on the ferry boat that she first met Ken. She tried to recall the date. February some time, she couldn't be sure just when . . . and in June they were married, and she had "Forever and ever" engraved inside her ring, and now it was the second of August and it was all over . . . all over, and she was only 20 . . . . to have your life finished when you're 20.

TRAIN ANNOUNCED

"For Ump-Ump and Ump-ump—THIS WAY."

The woman in the red coat who had sat next to her was gone. So was the man with the funny nose, who ate peanuts across the aisle. And the two pretty girls who took the red coat lady's place . . . people . . . people . . . All of them going places they wanted to go to, to people they loved . .

People they loved . . With a start Lily Lou sat up . . She'd forgotten May . . . she should have telephoned to May, told her something . . . anything . . . Perhaps her mother, too . . .

Irresolute she stood by her seat, looking towards the telephone booths. She hated to call May at the office.

The announcer was shouting again. She found herself listening "and the San Francisco Limited!"

Her knees knocked together. They were shutting the door. She'd sat three hours, and she was going to miss the train.

"Wait!" she screamed at the closed door, "Oh, please wait!"

Synopsis

Lily Lou Lansing, young and pretty telephone operator, gives up her opportunity for an operatic career to marry wealthy Ken Sargent. Ken's mother threatens to have the marriage annulled. Ken loses his position with his father, but secures a better one. The young couple take a small apartment and are ideally happy. Then, one night, Lily Lou awakens to hear Ken sobbing. Next day, Lily Lou meets Peggy Sage, an old friend of Ken's and is stunned to learn from her that Ken lost his job. Later, she is relieved when Ken explained he did not take her into his confidence because he wanted her to be proud of him. After Ken leaves the next morning, a knock comes to the door. It is Ken's father. He asks Lily Lou to give up Ken and informs her their marriage was annulled.

Now Go On

Together

Can we go back and find again
Old ways where once we trod
Before we drained the cup of pain
And kissed the chastening rod?

Not I alone or you alone
Can find those paths so dear;
If we would win to roads well known,
We two must journey near.

We must keep close together, Sweet,
Throughout the whole, long way
Back to glad pathways where our feet
Danced many an April day.

And if we seek it hand in hand
I think that we may find
That lovely, lost, enchanted land,
Still beautiful and kind!

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

ONLY THOSE of you who are ardent radio fans will enjoy Dave Murray's fable that I offer you herewith. It concerns D. T. Sleazle, president of the Consolidated Pretzel Corporation, who sat in his office one morning and spoke to his pretty secretary in gloomy tones.

"My child," he muttered, "I must find the perfect radio program. The Consolidated Pretzel Corporation has never failed to come forward with a new idea. Is this going to be our exception? We are going on the air. That much is decided. But who is going to supply the material? Where are we going to get the perfect radio program?"

The secretary flashed a non-secretarial smile. She was the kind of girl that men may forget—but not the kind their wives do.

"Tell you what you do, big boy," she chirped. "Send for Vice President McTavish. He's full of notions and things. Maybe he'll hit the very thing."

"You think," said Mr. Sleazle, "that he's the man for the job?"

"Absolutely," replied the girl. "Hasn't he always done big things around here? Isn't he daffy about your daughter? He doesn't know much about anything. Surely he'd be the ideal guy to suggest a radio program."

The president nodded with great solemnity.

"You want to see me, D. T.?" asked Angus in his rich Bronx accent.

"No," snapped D. T. Sleazle, "most assuredly I do not want to see you."

He sighed heavily.

"But," he added sadly, "I have to."

Mr. MacTavish glowed with happiness. From Mr. Sleazle, these were kind words indeed. Suddenly the boss spoke again.

You didn't catch MacTavish without a suggestion.

The president shook his head. But he made a mental note of the suggestion. It certainly was a swell idea. He looked closely at Vice President MacTavish.

"Angus," he said, "I understand that you want to marry my daughter. Do you?"

The other man closed his eyes and swayed with emotion.

"Do I want to marry your daughter?" he repeated. "Oh, my dear Mr. Sleazle, when you but mention the words you stir my very soul. And how I want to marry her!"

D. T. clapped his hands.

"Very good," he said. "There is but one hitch before I give my consent. You must supply me with an idea for the perfect radio program. Consolidated Pretzels is going on the air. We must have the perfect program. Give it to me, and the girl is yours."

Angus MacTavish pounded the table.

"For a long time, D. T.," he cried, "I have been thinking about that very thing. I have an idea that will prove to be an absolute sensation. It will startle the nation and put Consolidated Pretzels back on its feet. Boy, this is hot!"

The president frowned.

"Remember, young man," he cautioned, "we haven't got a million dollars to spend."

"That's the beauty of my idea," enthused MacTavish. "It will cost less than any program on the air, and the public will go crazy about it. We ought to have two hours on the air with a national hookup once a week."

D. T.'s mouth opened wide.

"Two hours!" he repeated. "Why, I was thinking that 15 minutes, twice a week, would be plenty."

"With my plan," he chirped, "we can afford two hours."

Still D. T. wasn't convinced.

"It isn't possible," he groaned. "Imagine what that will cost for our orchestras, crooners, comedians and sopranos."

"That's just the point," MacTavish went on. "It won't cost us one cent for anything but the radio time. Not a penny for saxophone tooting or any of the other noises."

The president glared at MacTavish.

"Angus," he growled, "I know that, with your nature, you will never spend too much on anything. But I think you're losing your mind. Cut the comedy and give me your idea."

The young man crept to the door and made certain that no one was listening. He came back and gazed directly into the boss' eyes.

"Mr. Sleazle," he said earnestly, "I want you to listen carefully. You are about to hear the perfect radio program.

"On the Consolidated Pretzel Corporation we will have two hours of absolute silence. At the very beginning, we'll have the announcer say that it is a program—and his next step will be to read off a list of things that the people will not have to listen to during our two hours!

"Consider it, boss. The results will be tremendous. Not only will we be cheered by the press and public, but the Consolidated Pretzels will be hailed as a public benefactor. How does it strike you?"

Need I tell you how the idea hit Mr. Sleazle? He threw his arms around MacTavish and immediately admitted that he had just heard the perfect radio program.

"Young man," he said solemnly, "you have solved the secret of the current air waves. I promised you my daughter as a reward—but now I am going to give you an even greater reward. Instead of letting you have her, which would be too cruel, I'm going to increase your salary $10 a week!"

"God bless you," murmured Mr. MacTavish . . .

"DEAR MARK," writes A. J. B., from Lynchburg, Va. "As a traveling man, I encounter any number of experiences that seem to be interesting material for you. Here's one that is short, even if it's not so sweet.

"I was going from a spot in North Carolina to Norfolk, Va., in my machine and I stopped at a gasoline station to replenish my gas and oil. A young Marine stepped up and asked if I were going in the direction of Portsmouth, Va. He said he was returning to the Navy Yard after a furlough. I told him I would be glad to have his company.

"As we rode along, he talked to me.

"'Funniest experience I ever had,' he narrated. 'It happened only a short time ago, and if it doesn't strike you funny, I'm crazy. I was in a small North Carolina town last Sunday and I can tell you that I felt plenty thirsty. Someone sent me over to a store and I bought a bottle of corn liquor for a dollar and a half. I wanted something to go with the stuff, so I ordered me a bottle of pop.

"'The proprietor was most apologetic. But he shook his head.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS -:- Junior Komic Club

Much laughter is being created at the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theater Junior Komic Club meetings these days by imitations by members of famous movie stars. Among the most popular stars for this stunt are Charley Chaplin, Joe Penner, Eddie Cantor, Joe Brown and Helen Kane.

At the Harris, Etna, Saturday, both boys and girls entered the Joe Penner contest, and prizes were awarded for the best imitations. Next week another star will be chosen.

MANOR CHAPTER

The big Manor Theater was filled to capacity at Saturday's meeting. After the usual opening ceremonies, presided over by the grand jester and board of governors, a stage show was presented under the direction of Vera Liebau. Little Dave Jeffries acted as master of ceremonies and did a double number with Grace Rogan. Other children on the program were Lillian Bauman and Russell Hoeltz.

The closing of the Manor Chapter meetings each week is most inspiring. Boy Scouts of the district take personal pride in their closing exercises. Flag bearer and bugler lead the march to the stage, where the scouts stand at attention while taps is sounded.

JUVENILE TALENT

Managers of the seventeen Warner Theaters in which Junior Komic Club meetings are held, receive dozens of applications each week from children who want to appear in the stage show. These applications are filed, and as many as possible put on every week. It is not necessary to belong to any dancing class to be eligible to appear at the Junior Komic Club meetings. Any member of the club will be put on the list at the Warner Theater nearest his or her home.

HOW TO JOIN

If you are not already a member of this interesting club, do not lose any time in joining. Write a letter today to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, giving your name, address, age, birthday, and name of the school you attend. You will receive your membership card and button through the mail.

Or you may join the club by going to the nearest chapter headquarters on Saturday at the time appointed for the meeting. The manager will take your application and give you your membership card and button.

Scenes like this show how strained relations between China and Japan have become in the Chapei district of Shanghai, despite efforts of all nations to establish a neutral zone. Note that the Chinese Mandarin carries a high explosive bomb, which he will not hesitate to use if the Japanese Admiral goes beyond the bounds of international decency. Furthermore, the Mandarin is protected by a defensive mosquito net to guard against sniping from the rear. A curious thing about the Admiral is that he wears neither belt nor suspenders, but holds up his trousers with the iron fist in the velvet glove.

POLITICAL CRISIS IN LAMAR FINALLY STRAIGHTENED OUT

(From Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

We've got the politics of one candidate for sheriff down wrong. Deputy Sheriff Smed Evilsier said to us Saturday, "Look here! You've been saying in your paper that I had no opposition on the Republican side for sheriff. You see Charlie Redd was a candidate."

"Sure!" we came back. "But Charlie's just another Democrat wanting to be sheriff, ain't he?"

"That's where you're wrong, Smed said. "You've got Charlie on the wrong side of the fence. Charlie is a Republican."

We've known Charlie a good while, but we didn't know him in a political way. When he told us the other evening he was in the race, he naturally assumed that we knew which side he was on and said nothing about it.

No Need for Haste

City Council Should Not Accept as Satisfactory the Picayunish Rate Cuts Offered by Mr. Phillips.

The prediction has been made that City Council will accept as satisfactory the picayunish rate cuts offered by President Frank R. Phillips, of the Philadelphia Company group of public utilities. It is to be hoped that the prediction is wrong.

At any rate there should be no haste about the matter. Mr. Phillips offers a cut in electric light rates which will amount, so far as the average consumer is concerned, to no more than 10 cents a month. He offers a reduction of 2½ cents in the bus fare to those who will buy 10 bus tickets for $2. The reductions are so petty that no harm will be done in postponing final action until they have been given further consideration.

Let Council get some advice from outside sources as to what would be fair rates in view of the earnings of the utilities companies. Let a comparison be made with the rates in other cities. It is believed inquiry will disclose that Mr. Phillips' companies can reduce rates to a much lower figure than he has offered and still earn a fair return, in the long run, on their investment.

A Boon to Pittsburgh

Large Industrial and Construction Projects in Other Parts Of the Country Require Local Products.

Welfare agencies are asking for help to tide over the unemployed until June. By June, they believe, industry will be well on its way back to normal.

As part of the evidence that increased industrial operations are in prospect for the Pittsburgh district in the near future we point to the news that Henry Ford will need $47,000,000 worth of steel for the 1,500,000 new automobiles that he proposes to produce this year.

Much of this steel will be manufactured in Pittsburgh.

It is estimated he will require $10,000,000 worth of glass for his cars. That means work for Pittsburgh workmen, too.

The orders that Ford is expected to place here are but a part of the new business in prospect for local mills.

Rockefeller Center, formerly known as Radio City, which is to occupy three city blocks in New York City, will require 75,000 tons of fabricated steel, 125 miles of iron and steel pipe, 1,000,000 square feet of glass, besides aluminum for the handrels, and other local products. Pittsburgh concerns will get much if not all of this business.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, planning to proceed with its $175,000,000 electrification project between New York and Washington, D. C., will buy its electric equipment from the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. The Westinghouse Company has also just received a contract for electric equipment for the Reading Railroad.

There is plenty in the outlook to justify cheerfulness.

The Legion's Appeal

The World War Veterans Offer a Plan by Which People Can Help to Relieve Unemployment.

As their part of a nation-wide campaign through which the American Legion expects to find jobs for 1,000,000 unemployed men and women, local posts of the organization plan to make a house-to-house canvas in Allegheny County this week in the station of help.

They will ask householders to furnish at least a few hours employment weekly to destitute persons. It will be suggested that the idle men and women be allowed to do odd jobs such as cleaning the premises, removing trash, whitewashing walls or fences and making little improvements.

We suppose there is scarcely a home where there is not some such work waiting to be done. The housekeeper or some other member of the family may have planned to do such a job when leisure was available. Why not let it be done by one of the unfortunates whom the Legion is trying to help?

It may be possible for the residents of a street or neighborhood in co-operation to employ several persons who will work for the benefit of them all.

An example of what is meant may be found in the case of residents of an outlying North Side neighborhood with inadequate police protection who have agreed, at the suggestion of an American Legion post, to pay 50 cents a week each to employ men to patrol the district at night.

If there should be a generous response to the Legion's appeal the effect would be beneficial not only in improving the employment situation but also in making neighborhoods in which the plan operates cleaner, pleasanter, safer places in which to live.

An Airplane Hazard

Accident Near Bettis Field Calls Attention to the Need for Further Safeguards.

Steady progress is being made in making aviation safe. In this vicinity new beacon lights have been erected to guide night fliers. The State Aeronautics Commission is conducting experiments and making surveys with a view to eliminating the risks of airplane travel. The mishap that occurred near Bettis Field Friday night calls attention to one of the things that should be done.

A mail plane bound for Cleveland became entangled in three high tension wires which the pilot failed to see in time, and it is regarded as little short of a miracle that the three occupants of the craft escaped injury. One of them, W. L. Pike, of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce, remarked that he did not understand why the airplane did not catch fire. He added:

"It is very surprising to me that obstruction lights have not been placed on those wire poles. They certainly should be."

Mr. Pike's recommendation is commended by common sense.

There should be lights or other appropriate signals to warn fliers of wires not only in the vicinity of Bettis Field, but at all our airports.

Ease the Pain -:- -:- -:-

By Nelson Harding

Harsh and heavy lies the burden
On those bruised and tender shoulders;
Weary is the back and bended
Of this patient burden bearer,

Why not make the load less painful
By a sane and simple method?
Why not make the task less irksome
For the overladen toiler?

Marry-Go-Round

The Green-Eyed Monster

The weakest link in the tie that binds a man to a woman is the woman's fear of other women. Her slumbering jealousy. Her inferiority-complex!

* * *

If every prospective bride would tuck a copy of Warren Spencer's novel, "Forever and Ever," in her hope-chest, and read it at least once a month, the travel to Reno would be appreciably decreased.

If woman had only a soupcon of mans CONCEIT, cockiness and self-complacency, she would never doubt a man's love for her. A man is seldom jealous of a woman; because, once he has bestowed himself upon her, he cannot imagine that she could possibly want anything better! But, woman is the weaker vessel, filled with an inferiority complex.

* * *

No matter how beautiful and desirable a woman may be, nor what a human-cipher she may have drawn in the matrimonial sweepstakes, she can always work herself into a lather over the imaginary picture of hubby surrounded by designing and beautiful sirens, all struggling to lure him away from her.

* * *

Jealousy is the ptomaine poisoning of love. And the cyanide of potassium of romance. Just one flash of it in a woman's eye, one shade of it in her voice, and it is as though she had lifted a mask and shown a menacing creature behind it. Never again, can the man feel the same glamour for her.

Many a man would never discover that his love for a woman was growing cold, if she did not remind him of it, every time he glances at another woman. Even if he never before thought of another woman, he'll begin right then and there to glance about, to see how many are falling for him. There is nothing like a woman's jealousy to give a man that cocky, self-confident conquering-hero feeling!

* * *

A woman may break a man's heart, his pocketbook, or even his head, and he will go right on loving her; but, once she breaks out into a jealous tirade, she has broken the spell of romance. Sometimes, I wonder why so much is written, warning young wives to keep beautiful and "kissable"—while so little has been written urging them to be charitable, wise, silent and a little blind.

* * *

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Through town, talking to Victor Moore, the play actor, "Duke" Herrick, park commissioner, and Sophie Tucker. And home to find an autographed book from John Uri Lloyd, who wrote that treasured tome, "Stringtown on the Pike."

At my typing and came Hattie Bell Johnston, bringing a paper knife she picked up at Sarajevo, where the World War started. Later to a tea, talking to Frank Libuse, the blundering waiter, and incredible to realize such an intelligent fellow could appear so goofy.

With my wife to the Irvin Cobbs for dinner and the George Ormsbys, of San Francisco, there, also Mrs. Peggy Drum and the former Christie McDonald, entrancing star of "Spring Maid," who told some of the most devastatingly hilarious tales ever I heard. So home late to bed.

Someone dialed to a screeching singer who announced it was her first appearance before the microphone. "Why a microphone?" murmured Jim Quirk with satirical detachment. "Why not just open the window?"

Several fashionable schools for flappers are teaching a bold style of handwriting—a rapid process of block lettering, extraordinarily distinguishable. Herb Roth, the caricaturist, antedates this method many years. He can write more rapidly in this fashion than the fastest free hand penman.

Broadway's "mystery guy" for the season has been the thin-templed Owney Madden, reputed gangster and listed as a public enemy. He is romanticized in as many underworld legends as the late gambler, Arnold Rothstein. Out of a gas-house district of Hell's Kitchen, Madden is reported the power behind the amazingly impertinent drinking dens lodged in former pallazos of the East Side. Now under parole, he never visits the places he is said to direct. Shy, and wrung by the twists of life, he is far from the picture of a Tenderloin bad man of the movies.

LISTEN, WORLD -:-

By Elsie Robinson

You get a queer feeling sometimes, lately; don't you? A feeling as if nothing mattered any more; as if everything you'd ever believed in were going out on the Big Wind!

Can't take up a newspaper without seeing some cherished illusion blown to smithereens. Can't step out of your own door without hearing of some rotten deal.

And it's getting your goat. Not that you're any softie. You've always been pretty wise to things—always known there was a lot of cussedness going on—but, somehow, that cussedness didn't belong in YOUR world, with YOUR kind of people. It belonged some place else, with some other kind of people.

But lately YOUR world is caught in the same mess. You find yourself doubting your best friend; find yourself wondering if there's a really 100 per cent decent person left on earth—almost willing to bet that the whole popeyed human race is just a bunch of hypocrites and grafters!

Is that the way you feel? It certainly is. And you've plenty of company—all the rest of us—that same way. Utter discouragement? We sure have it!

Old King David had it, too, away back there in Jerusalem, when the world was young.

We think things are tough with us? Not a patch to what they were with him!

Grafters? Profiteers? Crooked politicians? He had the original bad actors. Idleness? Starvation? Beggars died like dogs in every gutter, and the foul reek of a great, rich people; wayward wallowing went up like a blast against heaven!

Black, bitter sights for an old king to see, sitting on his throne! But not more black or more bitter than that old king's own memories.

If they were bad, he had been bad, too. If they wallowed and wasted and killed, he, too, had set them an example.

How could he still have faith in them if he couldn't have faith in himself? How could he have faith in anything?

What was there left, in all that vast, rich land, amongst those teeming thousands, that any man might believe in? What of decency, or purity, or truth, or courage, or the rest of that sweet, bright vision that had lighted his heart as a boy?

Black, bitter thoughts for an old man to be thinking, with the darkened mind of him churning round and round, and the dying hands of him clutching at emptiness!

"BE STILL, AND KNOW THAT I AM GOD!"

"Something is left; God is left!" cried the voice within his heart. "Stop asking questions. Stop piling doubt upon doubt and despair upon despair. Stop judging life, or Me, by man's little blundering. I am left! Be still, and know that I am God. Be still, and have faith!

"Man may fail, but I shall not fail. I shall always go on. God and the things of God—they shall go on, forever and forever. Kindness, even though all men be unkind; purity, even though all men wallow; honor, even though all men be dishonorable—these things, and the dream of these things, shall not pass away from the power of God or the soul of man. These things he blew, as a spark, into the clay of man; and always, that spark will go on.

"Be still and know that I am God! Beneath all the turmoil, be still."

The House Rebukes Autocracy

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Yes, unquestionably, the President's Emergency Relief Commission has failed utterly, through individual donations, to scratch the surface of the necessities. The people's national government has made it plain that it proposes to do nothing to see that "no one starves in America." And any society that permits women and children to starve and drift into disease is not a civilized society.

Ponderous phrases, sanctimonious cant put no milk in the mouth of a child dying from undernourishment. Municipalities have reached the end of their resources, and in New York City a loan is refused by the bankers if money is to be appropriated for purposes that do not bring in financial returns.

Thus Roosevelt and his commission, which differs in humanity from that of the President, have summoned the legislative leaders and asked for another appropriation of $19,000,000 to prevent starvation in New York. This in the aggregate will mean an appropriation of $39,000,000. The next appropriation will necessitate new taxes.

We do not know where they are to be levied, but we do know that in a community with the greatest fortunes in the world, that have signally failed to respond to the calls of humanity, the taxes to prevent starvation should not fall upon the masses of the people who are barely able to get along.

Bad News for The Americans

The other day we learned from Paris that Ambassador Edge's mysterious and carefully cloaked statement on American "concessions" is interpreted there as a reiteration of the pledge given M. Laval in Washington; and Paris is pleased. From all of which it appears that the people of France are more familiar with the understanding reached in the secret conferences of M. Laval and President Hoover than the American people are permitted to be.

Politically, it is safer to tell the people good news than bad news; and if there was an understanding that the debts of the French should be transferred, in whole or in part, to the American people, it was good news for the French and bad news for the Americans.

One day later we learn from Paris that the French war budget for nine months will reach $600,000,000. It may be difficult to convince Americans that a nation that can spend $600,000,000 in nine months for war purposes when there is no war cannot make payments, with interest, on the debt owing the people of this country.

Republicans Joined In the Rebuke

More encouraging is the news at home—that Speaker Garner has triumphed overwhelmingly over the President in the latter's plan to deprive Congress of its prerogative in the matter of the reorganization of the executive departments in the interest of economy and efficiency. Had the President had any serious thought of reorganization we should have heard about it during the last three years when he had a subservient Congress.

It was only after the announcement of Garner that the House was working on a plan that the President hurried his message to Congress requesting that he be given arbitrary power to proceed as he sees fit, with the hint that he proposes new offices with higher salaries. His hand was forced.

By a vote of 215 to 22 the House has joined Garner in a rebuke to the President, and many Republicans joined in the rebuke.

* * *

The Subservient House Surrendered

Mr. Hoover has not had much patience with the constitutional and traditional limitations to presidential power; no President has reached out for additional power more. None has shown less consideration for the prerogatives of the legislative branch of the government.

This was especially shown at the time of the consideration of the tragic Smoot-Hawley bill, when he insisted that he be given power under the pretense of the flexibility clause, to increase and lower tariff taxes at will, without limitation and in utter disregard of the constitutional provision as to the origin of revenue measures. The feature of the debate was the speech of James M. Beck, a Republican, with an old fashioned regard for American principles of government, who opposed what he called a plan "to enable the President to exercise the most ancient prerogative of Congress or of any legislative body in any free country in the world." It was in that speech he said:

"All the great battles of English liberty were fought upon this question whether any power, save that of an absolute monarch, could impose a duty without the consent of the great council of the realm. As we know, one English king lost his head in trying to impose taxes without the consent of Parliament; and the most glorious chapters of English history are those when Pym, Hampden and Hampden were willing to risk their heads upon the block rather than surrender the power of the Commons to decide the method of taxation."

The then subservient House surrendered on that vital principle, but the Senate refused to give additional power to the Executive.

Men's Minds Are Fixed By Middle Life

This reaching out for authority at the expense of the legislative branch and its prerogatives, and this autocratic trend, may be accounted for by several theories. Mr. Hoover, as a youth in college was not interested in history, government or politics. None was more remote from his field of thought.

During the greater part of his life there is nothing to indicate that he had any appreciation of the unique character of American institutions, or any intimate understanding of them. He left his country as a youth and remained away far into middle life. Then he was not interested in governmental matters here was during after his return, when it developed that he had no idea of the significance of the two political parties. It took him some months to decide as to his allegiance.

His work in Burma, China and Russia brought him into contact with government — but government hopelessly remote from ours. The government he knew and was familiar with was autocratic; and under these the dependent of the public will, the executive had powers that were repugnant to the constitutional fathers and abhorrent to the American people.

Men's minds are fixed by middle life, and he returned to America with a more exalted conception of executive power than any other president has ever had. The House, under the leadership of Garner, has merely refused executive pretensions.

Something for America To Remember

As a rule it must always be best to choose for the presidency men whose lives have been spent in America and who have been trained in American politics. We have a school of American historians who imagine that a man who has made a success in business would naturally make a successful President. There are many things in government never contemplated by business men unless interested in governmental matters.

We commonly explain the genius in the Constitution on the ground that the Constitutional fathers were, for the most part, profound students of government and history. They learned from the experience of the past. The Morrises would never have framed such a Constitution; it required the Madisons for that. This is the reason the most successful presidents are men who have been trained in politics and governmental work.
